Vast Defense Plan Up in Coming Week

5 Billion to Be Asked for Planes, Guns

Washington—(AP)—A vast, supplementary defense program, expected to cost upwards of $5,000,000,000 and designed to take long strides toward building up the nation's air forces toward a 50,000-plane goal, will be submitted to congress next week.

The program, discussed today at the White House, is intended to start mass production of planes, tanks and guns.

Details were worked out in a conference between President Roosevelt and key officials in the defense program, but the necessity for completing some factors for the navy probably will result in holding up its submission to congress until next week. One informed individual said a message probably would be submitted to the legislators Monday.

The multi-billion dollar program may be split about equally between outright appropriations and authorizations for additional appropriations to be made subsequently.

The army is expected to be given some $4,000,000,000 in appropriations and authorizations and the navy another $1,000,000,000.

Will Build Motors

While this vast development was taking shape, the defense commission announced that the Packard Motor company had agreed tentatively to build 9,000 airplane engines—3,000 for the United States and 6,000 for Great Britain.

William S. Knudsen, commission member, said the agreement was subject to approval by Packard directors. Henry Ford refused the order, saying he would work only for the United States.

On the basis of estimates given congress, the Packard contract presumably represented $120,000,000 or more.

Congress provided $43,500,000 for the American share of 3,000 engines when negotiations were progressing with Ford, and officials said the fund was available for the Packard contract. The British share is in addition to this.

Aircraft experts said an estimate that production could be started in 10 months was extremely short, in the light of industry's experience in

Heil Seeks Probe of Reds on U. W. Faculty

Madison—(AP)—The executive office made public today Governor Heil's letter to University of Wisconsin regents asking them to consider the exclusion of students advocating subversive doctrines.

The governor also proposed their investigation be directed against faculty members "who are teaching the gospel of communism and its affiliates." The text of the letter follows:

"Newspaper representatives in Madison have been in my office to discuss with me the activities of communists, nazis and fascists, and they told me that the University of Michigan had written letters to their students who had socialist tendencies advising them that they would not be readmitted to the school this fall. And so the newspaper boys wanted to know whether we were doing anything to guard against these young men and women making application at the University of Wisconsin. I told them that we had not up to this time, but that I was going to ask the president of the board of regents and the board to consider whether it would be advisable to interest themselves in trying to eliminate obnoxious minds from entering our university and by chance infecting the pure minds who love their America and their constitution and their flag.

"So I am asking you as a member of the board of regents, if you please, to consider this danger which is threatening our fine citizens of America.

"I also wish that you would contact the president of the university, Mr. Dykstra, and I think it would be wise to ascertain just how many we have on the faculty of our university who are teaching the gospel of communism and its affiliates.

"I feel that at this crucial moment we ought to know the enemies in our midst, and so I hope and pray that you and the rest of the board will find a solution to the problem confronting our state and nation."

Assails Heil

Madison—(AP)—Ned Sparks of Milwaukee, state secretary of the Communist party, said last night that Governor Heil's order to the University of Wisconsin board of regents to exclude communists from the university carried the "trademark" of Adolf Hitler.

Sparks spoke in the Memorial Union at a meeting arranged by the Young Communist league. About 175 summer school students and townspeople attended, but less than a dozen were known Communists.

Only Sparks and Marvin Lubin of Madison, the chairman, were on the platform.

Governor Heil had said he probably would have an observer at the meeting, but his representative, if present, was not identified. Robert Zimmerman, assistant secretary of state and son of Secretary of State Fred Zimmerman, was present. He said no one asked him to attend.

Indiana Police Hunt
For Missing Realtor

Nappanee, Ind.—(AP)—State police and county authorities were asked today to search for Howard Prickett, 47, Nappanee real estate dealer missing since Monday.

Officers said Prickett left home about 6 a. m. on a business trip to Syracuse and Warsaw, Ind. A friend saw him driving east of Nappanee last Monday morning.

Acquaintances said Prickett picked up hitch-hikers frequently and they expressed fear he had been harmed.

Prickett has a wife and a 9-year-old son. He is a past commander of the Nappanee American Legion post.

Naval Affairs Group Favors O. K. for Knox

Senate Action on 2 Cabinet Nominees Is Probable Next Week

Washington—(AP)—The senate naval affairs committee approved, 9 to 5, today the nomination of Colonel Frank Knox, Chicago Republican, to be secretary of the navy.

This action cleared the way for senate consideration, probably early next week, of the Knox appointment and of the nomination of Henry L. Stimson, also a Republican, to be secretary of war.

The naval committee vote came after Knox had been questioned at length about, and had denied specifically, a report that he favored sending United States soldiers to fight in Europe. Stimson's nomination was approved yesterday by the senate military affairs committee.

Knox also testified today that despite President Roosevelt's selection of two Republicans for the key defense positions in his cabinet "you haven't got a coalition government." There has been no official party

France Will Call National Parley

London—(AP)—A dispatch by Havas, French news agency, from Vichy, France, said today that the French government would call a national assembly to give France a new constitution under the high authority of Marshal Petain.

Geneva—(AP)—The new French constitution of the Petain government is designed to wipe out "parasites, favoritism and plutocracy which have done so much evil to the country," said the newspaper Le Petit Dauphinois of Grenoble, France.

In a dispatch today from Vichy, the paper indicated that the new constitution would be authoritarian although "within the framework of the republican constitution, and will give back to the state its authority, sovereignty and prestige."

Two Texas Gunmen Are Slain After Killing Hostage

McAllen, Texas—(AP)—Two unidentified gunmen who earlier had killed a woman hostage were shot to death today in a second battle with peace officers.

The woman, Mrs. D. Davis, 35, of Kingsville, was shot as she fled from the outlaws with her husband and a man companion, at the outset of the first battle. The gunmen had commandeered the Davis car.

The outlaws escaped after an exchange of shots at a road barricade, but were tracked down and killed in a second fight. About 100 officers engaged in the hunt.

Deputy Sheriff E. E. Vickers said the outlaws came from east Texas. Their fingerprints were taken in an effort to identify them.

Anti-Semitic Riots Spread, Scores Hurt

Problems Growing As King Tries to Avert Added Land Losses

Bucharest—(AP)—Anti-Semitic rioting spread rapidly throughout Rumania today, complicating King Carol's difficult problem of trying to have his kingdom from further dismemberment.

Scores were injured, some believed fatally, in a number of riots last night in Bucharest and other places ranging from the capital to Jassy, near the border of Russian-occupied Bessarabia. Today they extended throughout the country.

The government appeared to be making little headway in checking the attacks, despite reinforcement of police in many places. Troops were rushed to the scenes of disorders but usually arrived too late. Meanwhile attacks broke out elsewhere.

Many wealthy Jews fled to the country and others remained inside their homes. Bucharest has between 100,000 and 200,000 Jews.

The attacks started Sunday near the Bessarabian border.

Serious Disorders

Official quarters made no effort to minimize the seriousness of these disorders, coming at a time when Hungarian troops were massed on the frontier in support of Transylvania and when Bulgaria was pressing for a similar annexation of southern Dobruja.

While Rumania observed a day of national mourning as a result of the cession of Bessarabia and northern Bucovina to Russia, Rumanian and Russian delegates met at Odessa to discuss the new boundary between the two countries.

Today's day of mourning marked the deadline for withdrawal of Rumania from the ceded areas.

Flags flew at half-staff and the nation observed a one-minute silence at noon—the hour at which the withdrawal was scheduled to end.

Blame Iron Guard

King Carol, meanwhile, conferred with his ministers on the problem presented by the widespread anti-Semitic demonstrations.

Diplomatic quarters expressed belief that the anti-Semitic attacks were inspired by Iron Guard (fascist) extremists trying to embarrass King Carol. Spread of the attacks coincided with Rumania's formal cutting away from British ties and her definite alignment with Germany.

(Diplomatic circles in Belgrade reported that Carol had told his cabinet he was planning to abdicate because of the loss of territory.)

Germany Speeds Up Air Attacks on Britain

COLONEL KNOX-SURROUNDED BY DEMOCRATS — Colonel Frank Knox, Chicago publisher and Republican vice presidential nominee in 1936, found himself between two staunch Democrats when he appeared before the senate naval affairs committee regarding his nomination by President Roosevelt to be secretary of the navy. ## $5,000 Top Limit On Willkie Gifts

Nominee Says Funds Will Not Give Public Jobs to Donors

New York—(AP)—Wendell L. Willkie has turned thumbs down on big contributions to his campaign for president.

In a statement on campaign fund policy, the Republican nominee said yesterday, "I don't want any man who contributes to this campaign to think that by reason of a large contribution he is entitled to any reward in the way of an ambassadorship, or any other public position."

He announced he had issued instructions that contributions be limited to $5,000 and that all contributions from corporations be refused.

"In my judgment," he said, "this is a people's movement, and I want to keep it that way."

At the same time, he announced the appointment of a 12-member campaign advisory committee, headed by Governor Harold E. Stassen of Minnesota. The committee's members represent all sections of the nation and include leaders who were active in the pre-convention campaigns for Thomas E. Dewey and Senator Robert A. Taft.

Willkie said today he thought party lines would play little part in the coming campaign, and that the issue was between those who believed in the New Deal's philosophy and those who opposed it.

Asked to comment on a statement by John L. Lewis, CIO chief, that Senator Wheeler (D-Mont.) was the only candidate the Democrats could nominate to defeat him, Willkie said:

"It doesn't matter who the Democrats nominate. We are going to win."

Willkie added that he agreed with Lewis that President Roosevelt should be run for a third term, but he could not defeat him.

Willkie said it appeared "more and more certain" that he would set up a three-man control system for

Slayer Is Sent To Gallows in Dublin Prison

Son of Former Lord Mayor of Cork Hanged For Killing Detective

Dublin—(AP)—Thomas MacCurrian, 22, son of the former lord mayor of Cork, was hanged today in Mountjoy prison for the fatal shooting of Detective John Roche on Jan. 4.

The elder MacCurrian, commander of the outlawed Irish republican army, was dragged from his bed and shot in a Sinn Fein disorder of 1920, while his son was still a child in arms.

Young MacCurrian eventually replaced his father as I.R.A. commander in Cork and was arrested frequently by Detective Roche. He shot Roche when the detective sought to question him on a downtown street.

At the inquest into the father's death, a coroner's jury returned a verdict of "willful murder" against David Lloyd George, then prime minister, and other British officials.

Hunger Strike

Young MacCurrian also went on a 55-day hunger strike during imprisonment, and his trial was postponed several times on account of his physical condition.

He was convicted despite his plea that he frequently had been beaten by unknown assailants, carried a pistol in self-defense, and did not recognize the officer.

Thomas Grogan, an I.R.A. leader, was sentenced by a military court today to 12 years' imprisonment for participating in an ammunition raid on Phoenix Park arsenal last December.

A band overpowered the arsenal guards and seized 22 tons of machine gun and rifle cartridges. Most of the ammunition was recovered.

Reich Sees Heavy Toll In Shipping

London—(AP)—The air ministry announced today that the Royal Air Force last night raided military objectives in Denmark, Belgium, the Ruhr and Westphalia.

The ministry said that Texel, in the Frisian islands, and Ymuiden, in northern Holland, were bombed today and the Belgian port of Zeebrugge last night. One British plane was reported missing.

London—(AP)—Relays of German bombers harassed the United Kingdom today.

The bombers, in all-day attacks over the whole length of England, killed two persons and injured 22.

The raiders dropped bombs on the southeast coast, in the north-east of England, in Scotland and on the eastern English shore.

Three German bombers were shot down, one of them in a fierce fight off the southeast coast.

Today's casualties brought to 15 dead and approximately 144 wounded the total for the last 24 hours.

British defenses fended off their twenty-fourth raiding plane brought down in a half-month of continuing, big scale forays.

At one point in the south a German bomber fled southward, pursued by three British hurricane fighters. With swastikas plainly visible, it swooped to drop "whistling" bombs, then circled and dropped more. A column of smoke rose where the bombs fell.

German planes spanned south coast defenses this morning and dropped bombs at several points, following up a night assault which killed 12 persons and injured 123, officials said. This was the greatest casualty list of German raids thus far on British soil.

Indicating the persistence of the Germans attacking from the south, a joint air ministry-home security ministry communique, issued shortly after noon, said anti-aircraft defenses were still in action.

The communique said simply: "Several enemy aircraft crossed the south coast this morning and have dropped bombs at a number of points. Anti-aircraft defenses are in action."

The heaviest of the night raids came at three northeastern coastal towns.

British fighter planes took off this morning after an enemy plane was seen flying toward the south-east over the south coast.

The invader fired machine-gun bursts off the coast, strafed soldiers near the beach and dropped incendiary bombs.

Third Party Talk Resumed After Lewis' Speech

Endorses Wheeler in Address at Townsend Pension Convention

By the Associated Press

Washington—While a 12-member advisory committee took charge of Wendell Willkie's Republican presidential campaign, John L. Lewis' endorsement of Senator Burton K. Wheeler for president developed new third party talk today among the Wheeler forces.

Lewis gave his endorsement in an address at the national Townsend pension convention at St. Louis yesterday shortly after Wheeler had told reporters that his name would be placed before the Democratic national convention regardless of whether President Roosevelt sought re-nomination.

Wheeler previously had said he would seek the nomination only if Mr. Roosevelt did not run for a third term. The latter has two-thirds of the Democratic delegates, but declined to give his press conference yesterday any hint of his intentions.

Without waiting for the Democrats to pick his opponent, Willkie began yesterday to organize his campaign. He said he wanted no "corporate contributions in any guise," and that any contributions exceeding $5,000 from one source would be rejected.

At the head of the 12-man advisory committee he placed Gov. Harold E. Stassen of Minnesota, his convention floor leader.

Approved by Lewis

Senator Wheeler was described by Lewis as the only man in the Democratic party who could beat Willkie. The C.I.O. leader added that if the Democrats should fail "to outline a program and name candidates whom the common people can support, then it is time for labor and organizations like the Townsend organization to consider what to do."

Wheeler told the Townsend convention that unless the Democrats adopt a "progressive" platform and choose a presidential nominee pledged to peace, there would be no difference between them and the Republicans.

In Washington a long-time Wheeler backer, Senator Johnson (D-Colo.), told reporters: "If President Roosevelt is re-nominated, I think there will be a third party."

Rep. Rankin (D-Miss.) criticized Willkie in a house speech yesterday, saying that the Republican nominee, who just resigned as president of Commonwealth & Southern corporation, represented "the power trust."

"Word came down from Wall Street: 'You'll either take him or you won't get any campaign funds,'" Rankin said, turning to the Republican side of the chamber.

Rep. Dirksen (R-Ill.), in reply, quoted Willkie as saying the reason he changed his registration from Democrat to Republican in 1938 was that he did not leave the Democrats but that "they left me."

Grant County Wants D. J. Kenny in Senate

Lancaster—(P)—The Grant county Republican organization has endorsed Delbert J. Kenny, of West Bend, as a candidate for the Republican nomination for United States Senator. Harry E. Carthew, of Lancaster, said the endorsement was made at a meeting of party members from all sections of the county.

Seeking Ministers

Washington—(P)—The war department is seeking 565 more ministers for its chaplain's reserve corps to meet the needs of an expanding army. There are 1,008 members of the reserve now.

Cost of Pensions for Blind Children Constantly Growing

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau Madison—Although the rise is less spectacular than in old age assistance costs, public expenditures in Wisconsin for aid of dependent children and needy blind continue to go upward, the state public welfare department said in a report today.

At the beginning of June the children's rolls of the state-supported by joint contributions by the counties, the state and the federal social security board—numbered 22,191 cases in 12,333 families, the report said. In May the total was 20,043 cases in 12,302 families.

Although the blind pension load remains more constant than either old age or children's pensions, there are now 2,010 blind persons drawing aid checks which average $23.43 a month. A year ago the total was only 1,970.

The average monthly aid per family containing dependent children, the department said, is now $38.02. Detailed statistics on the number

Wisconsin Man Buys Truck With Pennies

Valmy, Wis. — (P)—Adam Reis drove his new truck up in front of a garage here recently and began juggling cigar boxes into the office. "Write me a receipt," Reis said. "Here's the money for the truck."

Frank Felhofer, the garage owner, took Reis' word for it that there were 50,000 pennies in the cigar boxes.

But it took two bank tellers half a day to reach the same conclusion.

'Take It Easy,' Motorists Told

Captain Steidl Lists Rules for Drivers, Pedestrians to Follow

Captain Charles Steidl of the county traffic squad today warned motorists to "take it easy" during the coming holiday weekend.

July last year proved a disastrous month for motorists and pedestrians. Motor vehicle department figures show that 81 persons were killed and 704 injured seriously in state traffic accidents last July. Outagamie county had one fatality and ten injured in traffic accidents in July 1939.

To keep their name off the July 5 casualty list, Steidl asks strict obedience of motorists to the following rules:

Obey all traffic laws. Even the most minor violation may result in a serious accident.

Don't be in a hurry. Allow plenty of time to complete your trip in safety.

Adjust your driving to weather, road and traffic conditions. Take no chances.

Pedestrians: In the city, cross at the crosswalks and obey all signals. In the absence of any traffic controls, use your head before you use your feet.

In the country, walk on your left side of the highway, facing oncoming traffic. At night, carry a light or wear light-colored clothing.

Discuss Bounty On Water Snakes

Waupaca — A bounty on water snakes was discussed by conservationists at their regular meeting Monday evening, and it was decided that a small premium should be set for each head collected by the junior conservationists. The money thus earned will swell the fund of the junior league treasury and help rid streams of a deadly enemy to trout.

For some months the younger boys have been trapping rabbits. The senior league has paid 15 cents for each one caught. The rabbits were later released outside the city limits by Warden George Whalen.

A social evening with no planned program constituted the regular meeting which was followed by refreshments served by Mayor I. B. Erickson and Arthur Osborne.

Fifty boys met at the league clubhouse Tuesday evening to hear Will Cook, Stevens Point, tell how to tie flies, use a fly rod and land big fish. Colored movie films pertaining to the subject were shown.

Refreshments in charge of Warden Whalen and A. J. Pinkerton concluded the evening. In addition to wieners and buns the boys were each given a bottle of milk.

Road Officials Will Convene at Ashland

Heil Is Glad He Was an 'Original' Willkie Man

By JOHN WYNGAARD

Post-Crescent Staff Correspondent Madison—Governor Julius P. Heil is proud that he was foresighted enough to pick Willkie as the Republicans' man "months ago," but he is worried at the same time about the "legitimacy" of Wisconsin Republicanism in the eyes of the national G. O. P. standard-bearer.

Fairly brimming over with enthusiasm for the man who stormed the national Republican convention in Philadelphia last week, the head of the Wisconsin Republican party invited reporters to his office in the capitol here yesterday to hear him sing the praises of the businessman who overnight became the nation's No. 1 Republican politician.

After hearing the governor marvel at Willkie's personality, and the spontaneity of his popular appeal and his spectacular capture of the convention, a reporter inquired:

"When did you decide, governor, that Willkie was your man?"

"My boy," he replied, "I have been for Willkie since there has been talk of a Republican candidate for the presidency, many months ago."

He also remarked that "I am sure Mr. Willkie will be very friendly to us, and I surely will get him into Wisconsin for the campaign."

But then he criticized the Wisconsin convention delegation, which was pledged to Dewey and which remained with its candidate until after Willkie was safely nominated, for lacking the graciousness to cast a unanimous vote for the nominee after their release by Dewey.

"It would have helped us a great deal in the future as far as being legitimate in the Republican party is concerned," he commented.

It has been known in inner Republican circles at the capitol for several weeks that Heil favored the utilities magnate for the Republican nomination, although the executive was scrupulously silent for the sake of party harmony within the state where Taft, Dewey and Vandenberg adherents claimed important support in the official party organization.

Heil's present statements recall that early this year he counseled the Republican party against pledging its delegates to the Philadelphia convention in the April primary election. At that time, he pointed out, there were only two outstanding candidates for the presidency.

He advised Wisconsin party men to send an uncommitted delegation, arguing that one of the reasons that Wisconsin has been "forgotten" by national Republican administrations in past years has been the party's habit of backing the losing candidate for the presidency.

War Situation Today

Nazi Fury Against Britain Grows As Balkan Crisis Dies

German U-boats and bombing planes attacked Britain with new fury today, while the official Nazi news agency, DNB, published alleged allied "win the war" plans for dragging most of Europe into the 10-month-old conflict.

DNB asserted documents captured in France disclosed an allied program for entangling Rumania, Turkey, Greece, Yugoslavia and Scandinavia to gain wide-spread new battlefronts against Germany.

The Nazi high command said German planes attacked a convoy off the English channel coast and sank 18,000 tons of British shipping. German submarines, the high command reported, torpedoed another 39,000 tons.

German sky raiders in a daylight sortie instead of their usual night-masked attacks, bombed the south coast of England today after an earlier assault that killed 12 and wounded 123.

With apparent easing of the Balkan crisis, permitting Hitler to divert attention from southeast Europe, Britons wondered if the intensified Nazi air raids signalled the opening of the long-awaited "battle for Britain."

Not All Quiet • Things were far from quiet, however, in southeast Europe. Bloody anti-semitic riots spread through Rumania, and King Carol II's hostile neighbor, Hungary, was mobilizing its army to the greatest peacetime strength.

Carol himself was reported on the verge of abdicating several days ago after sharp criticism over his surrender of Bessarabia and north Bucovina to Russia. He was said to have been dissuaded by his cabinet.

Hungarian army reinforcements streamed toward the border with Rumania but the latter based hopes for peace on Carol's bid for protection by the axis powers and on the strength of her own hastily-massed armies.

British bombers struck hard at the Ruhr valley of northwestern Germany, raided night after night, and sent townsfolk in large industrial cities scurrying to cellars. The Germans counted 41 killed and 73 hurt in the Ruhr raids during the past month and said the attacks remained with its candidate until after Willkie was safely nominated, for lacking the graciousness to cast a unanimous vote for the nominee after their release by Dewey.

"It would have helped us a great deal in the future as far as being legitimate in the Republican party is concerned," he commented.

It has been known in inner Republican circles at the capitol for several weeks that Heil favored the utilities magnate for the Republican nomination, although the executive was scrupulously silent for the sake of party harmony within the state where Taft, Dewey and Vandenberg adherents claimed important support in the official party organization.

Fort Sheridan Ready for Boys

C. M. T. Camp Opens Friday; Wisconsin Youths to Attend

Fort Sheridan, Ill. — (P)—Regular soldiers have put Camp Leonard Wood, a part of the military reservation here, in order for 1,680 young men who will start 30 days of training in the Citizens Military Training Camp Friday.

Regulars had the tents pitched, the cots arranged and vast stores of non-perishable supplies ready for distribution today because tomorrow, a holiday, will be devoted to special ceremonies.

The C.M.T.C. enrollees come from Illinois, Wisconsin and Michigan and receive 30 days training for which they get no pay. Completion of four years leads towards a commission as a reserve second lieutenant for many.

The enrollees draw their equipment Friday and by Monday are ready to start their duties. Regular army cooks prepare their meals.

"While it is true that these young men will receive military instruction," Col. John B. Johnson, commandant of the summer camps, "it is not the primary purpose of the C.M.T.C. to make soldiers. These camps strive to develop the qualities of leadership; the virtues of fair play; self reliance, self respect, respect for others and the rights of others; patriotism and good citizenship. By means of the C.M.T.C. we endeavor to inculcate the habits of discipline and intelligent obedience in the American youth of today."

Less Than 450 Combat Planes To Guard U. S.

Air Corps Not Ready To Defend Nation If War Should Start Now

By DEVON FRANCIS

Associated Press Aviation Editor

Seattle, Wash. — (P)—If this country were to be drawn into war tomorrow, the army air corps would have fewer than 450 combat planes for the defense of continental United States.

It would have less than 1,300 for the defense of the western hemisphere and the Philippines.

Last year American aircraft factories turned out less than 2,000 military planes, including such non-combat types as trainers and personnel transports. The world's leading air power, Germany, is reported to have a current productivity of from 36,000 to 48,000 planes a year.

The state of America's air defense establishment and its low factory production, at the moment, constitutes one of the reasons why we could not respond to French Premier Reynaud's eleven-hour plea for "clouds" of planes.

Many Planes Useless We do have several thousand military planes in our armed forces, but 80 per cent of them would be useless in wartime. Many are trainers. Many are obsolete.

During the war games on the Texas-Louisiana border last month a hurry-up call was dispatched from Langley field, Va., from which operations of the general headquarters air force are directed, for a concentration of all its flyable combat planes at Barksdale field, Shreveport, within 24 hours.

The GHQ air force, organized in 1935, is charged with the air defense of continental United States.

A total of 221 planes showed up, including 26 of our 50-odd 4-motor, long-range Boeing heavy bombers, manufactured here in Seattle. The rest were in the shop for overhaul. In all, the GHQ has less than 450 combat planes.

Navy Planes Separate The navy's air arm must be considered separately because its operations are associated intimately with the movements of the fleet. The GHQ, which type for type has much faster planes than the navy, enjoys also a greater latitude of activity. The army air corps, in fact, considers itself our "first line" of air defense.

The navy's air power, too, has been at a low ebb. Senator Byrd of Virginia said on May 24 that on the basis of figures submitted to the senate naval committee by Rear Admiral John H. Towners, chief of naval aeronautics, only 500 aircraft capable of meeting modern European warplanes in equal combat were attached to the fleet.

Whether the state of our air defenses is critical or not depends on (1) the importance the United States attaches to air power in relation to seapower and the strength of its ground army, (2) our proximity to war, (3) the rate at which warplane productivity can be stepped up, (4) the rate at which pilots can be trained, (5) the continued availability of many raw materials, including bauxite for aluminum, and (6) government procurement policies.

German Production Germany's warplane production is estimated by John H. Jouett, president of the aeronautical chamber of commerce, trade association, at 3,000 machines a month and by Louis Johnson, assistant secretary of war, at 4,000 a month, with a prospect of 6,000 a month by mid-September.

Jouett estimates American production in 1941 at 15,000 to 20,000 planes on an annual basis. Johnson says the aircraft industry is geared now to turn out 15,000 a year, and will be stepped up without emergency means to 25,000 by January.

Meantime the major aircraft engine factories are not expected to reach a production of 25,000 units of 1,000 horsepower each until next March, and the armed services—with an admitted paucity of pilots—are girding themselves to turn out 16,000-odd fliers a year. Barring breakage or loss in combat, one sturdy warplane will wear out several pilots in the course of a day.

Henry Ford has said that within six months he can produce 1,000 planes a day if the government does not demand design changes after production begins. In the history of government procurement in peacetime, no warplanes ever have been manufactured without changes in design during production.

Tests will be given to the girls by Genevieve Kronschnabel and Eunice Forster, girls instructors, and to the boys by Ben Lewis and William Ogilvie, boys instructors.

Risch said he expects about 150 boys and girls will complete the tests out of the 850 who attended classes. Swimming instructions were given this year to 417 boys and 442 girls.

Children who have learned to swim during the last three weeks at the Appleton Post-Crescent-Y. M. C. A. swimming school will be given their final tests tonight at the Y pool, according to Ray Risch, physical director at the Y.

Girls who passed their preliminary tests Monday will be given final tests at 7 o'clock and the boys who passed tests Tuesday will be in the pool at 8 o'clock.

The youngsters must swim alone the length of the pool, 60 feet, using the crawl stroke learned during swimming classes. Children who didn't pass their preliminary tests will be given another opportunity tonight, if they think they can swim 60 feet.

Parents and friends of the youngsters have been invited to see the tests and a representative of the Post-Crescent will award the certificates.

Council Acts On Requests for Sidewalk, Oil

Springmire Reappoints Dayton, Mrs. Jennings To City Library Board

New London—The common council held its monthly session last night and transacted a variety of minor business in a relatively short meeting.

A recommendation of the board of public works that a petition asking for sidewalks on E. Lawe street between Pearl and Lawrence streets be granted, was approved by the aldermen. Expenses are to be borne by property owners. A petition for oil on Smith street between Washington and Pine streets was put off until the next session. Mayor Lynn Springmire remarked the time was getting late and such petitions should not be encouraged.

The mayor reported he had made final arrangements to go ahead with the park and lagoon projects approved by the aldermen at a recent session. He reappointed Mrs. Frank Jennings and F. S. Dayton to 3-year terms on the library board.

Letter on Strike

The mayor read a letter from F. L. Zaun, treasurer of American Plywood Corporation, in which that official said the corporation would hold the city responsible for any damages resulting from the current strike. Springmire told the aldermen he had arranged with union officials for the plant's watchman force to function as usual.

Robert Shortell, city recreation director, reported on a swimming pool operators' instruction course he attended recently at Madison. William Litta, park board chairman, commended Shortell for his work in managing the Patten pool.

Shortell said the New London pool compared with the best but that the mosquito nuisance was a serious defect. The park grounds west of the pool are a good breeding place for the insects. Shortell brought out, and steps should be taken to eliminate this.

Bartenders' licenses were granted to William Manske, John Sawall, John Kelly and Louis Johnson. The aldermen voted to buy three city directories. Eleven departments were on the list to receive a copy, but the mayor remarked saving had to begin somewhere.

A complete report on the city's finances during the first six months would be given at the next session, the mayor stated.

Borden Hurler Loses 1-Hitter

All-Star Team Bows To Clintonville Squad When Late Rally Fails

New London—Len Hoffman held a team of Clintonville's best softball players to one hit on the enemy's field last night, but his Borden All-Star mates failed to shine at bat, the result being a 2 to 0 setback for the New London outfit.

In the second inning, with two Clintonville players on base, one on a walk and the other via an error, Christensen knocked a grounder down the third base line. Felsen, Borden third baseman, thought the blow foul and made no effort to field it, but the umpire decided otherwise and the home team had the winning runs.

The Borden weren't exactly Babe Ruths at bat, collecting only three singles off the flailing of Nelson, Derbach got two of these and Dayton the other. The New Londoners threatened in the last inning, but with the bases full Hoffman was an easy out.

High Life Nine Will End First Half With Seymour Game Sunday

New London—Miller High Life will engage in the first of two games to close the first half Northern State league slate tomorrow, journeying to Clintonville for an afternoon contest with the Truckers, Sunday Seymour, which holds a 14 to 4 triumph over New London, closes the first half season here in a night game.

With a league record of 3 wins and 5 losses the High Lives need a couple of wins to make sure of escaping the league cellar. A victory over the Truckers will tie the teams for the bottom rung, and a victory over Seymour will put New London ahead, as Clintonville closes its first half season with tomorrow's tilt.

On the basis of season performance the High Lives feel confident of a victory. In the first game between the two teams New London, won, 8 to 3, on the enemy's field, and in the second encounter, here, emerged on the satisfactory end of a 4 to 1 count.

Orrin Krohn again is expected to manage the locals. With no softball games to distract the players' attention Krohn may be able to put a lineup somewhat resembling the regular one on the field. In the last game, against Two Rivers, few of the performers were in their ordinary spots, several taking the night off for one reason or another. Cliff Decker probably will be the starting pitcher, with Pete Westphal in reserve.

Today and Tomorrow

BY WALTER LIPPMANN

Consequences of Willkie Nomination

By the nomination of Wendell Willkie the Republicans have removed foreign policy and national defense from the arena of partisan politics; therefore, there has disappeared the reason, which would have compelled Mr. Roosevelt to run for a third term and the only reason which would have justified this departure from American tradition.

It will soon be evident, I believe, that the nation has been saved from an internal disaster of disunion and demoralization which would have paralyzed the government in the face of the mounting external dangers in the Pacific, in Central America, and in Europe. For had the country been subjected to a four-months' foreign policy and the third term result could only have been tragic and ruinous. The debate would have been degrading in that the two parties would have been driven into a competition in demagoguery, into a vicious spiral of hysterical appeal to fear and selfishness, and in the end no matter who won the election, the United States would have lost it.

Nothing was plainer after the first three days at Philadelphia than that only the nomination of Willkie could unite the Republican party and provide a means by which the nation could be united. The struggle over the platform proved that conclusively. The platform is a hash of meaningless words because Willkie's opponents tried to draft a platform which would make it impossible for the convention to nominate him. The maneuver did not succeed because it was resisted even within the platform committee, and much more, of course, among the mass of the Republicans.

Thus the platform had to be meaningless because the party was divided and the opposing factions were deadlocked. If, then, the convention had failed to break the deadlock by nominating Willkie, his supporters would have been profoundly disaffected and in one way or another great masses of men would have turned silently away from the party and even openly to the Democratic party. There was a deep conviction in the Willkie movement which could not have been suppressed by the discipline of ordinary party regularity. Stage Would Have Been Set For Third Term

Under the circumstances the stage would have been set perfectly for a third term nomination at Chicago. It would have been evident that Mr. Roosevelt was by far the strongest candidate that the Democrats could nominate. He would have had behind him not only almost the whole of the Democratic party, but to a very large number of Republicans he would have represented, whatever their other feelings about him, the only available candidate who understands the world we are living in.

Colonel Stimson and Colonel Knox are by no means the only Republicans who would have felt that they had no other choice but to work with the President, and there would almost surely have developed some sort of fusion movement among Republicans and Democrats. The rule against the third term is a rule which ought never to be broken except when the vital interests of the nation are at stake. There would have been a very large number of Republicans and conservative Democrats who would have felt that the vital interests of the nation are at stake, and that the rule had to be broken because the alternative to Mr. Roosevelt was a candidate who could not be depended upon to understand and then to protect the vital interests of the country. They would have said that if in 1864 Lincoln had been completing his second term, a third nomination would have been necessary if the other candidates were men who were not sure where they stood on the great issues of the day.

No Longer Necessary For F. D. R. To Accept

Yet obviously it would have been appalling dangerous to enter a campaign which saw Mr. Roosevelt

School Election to Be Held Next Monday At Clintonville High

Clintonville—The annual school election for District No. 1 city of Clintonville will be held at the high school Monday, from 3 o'clock in the afternoon to 8 o'clock in the evening. Three members of the board of education will be elected to succeed F. A. Spearbraker, clerk; G. A. Jesse and Dr. J. H. Murphy. Mr. Spearbraker, who was elected mayor of Clintonville this spring, will not be a candidate for reelection to his position which he has held for the last 12 years. Reuben Lendved, who headed the association of commerce last year, has announced his candidacy for the position of school clerk for a three year term. Mr. Jesse and Dr. Murphy will seek election to their positions as board members for two year terms.

Twenty full grown pheasants were released in the vicinity of Clintonville Saturday under the supervision of Martin Falk and George Stevens, officers of the Clintonville Fish and Game Protective Association. The club received these birds as an award for its winter feeding program from the state conservation department's game farm at Poynette. The local fish and game club is also raising 500 pheasant chicks, which will be released in about six weeks. The rearing pens, which are located near the Beckman property on Waupaca street, are open for public inspection.

Makes Restitution For Worthless Check

Clintonville—William Domnitz, 22, a Milwaukee junk dealer, made restitution on a worthless check of $72 and paid all court costs here Saturday. He was arrested in Milwaukee Wednesday by Deputy Sheriff Ray Abraham of this city upon complaint of Alvin Knapp who had accepted the check in payment for a load of junk. It was explained in court by the attorney for Domnitz that the father of the young man also wrote checks on the same account and that the defendant was not aware that there were no funds in the Milwaukee bank to cover the check. The case was heard in the court of Justice of Peace E. E. Larson.

Defense Commission Well Over Some Initial Hurdles

BY RAYMOND CLAPPER

Washington—Although it has a long way to go, the defense advisory commission, the so-called Stettinius-Knudsen group appointed a month ago by President Roosevelt, is well over some of its initial hurdles. Perhaps the most controversial question now up is that of plant amortization. The issue concerns the speed with which a manufacturer, erecting a new plant for highly specialized defense production, may deduct construction costs from his profits in computing income tax.

Large sums are involved in this question. It is vital to manufacturers because the amount of depreciation write-off which is permitted by the government may determine whether the manufacturer makes a profit or goes in the hole. There will be hesitancy about private investment of large sums in defense plant construction until the question is settled.

Standard income-tax practice at the treasury department allows ordinary plant machinery to be amortized on a 10-year basis. In other words, the manufacturer can charge off 10 per cent a year. But who wants to throw several million dollars into an armor-plate plant and take the risk that it will be junk in two or three years? Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau has favored adhering to the standard treasury practice. Members of the defense commission fear that it will be difficult to obtain essential private plant expansion if depreciation must be taken over a 10-year period.

Judgement in the defense commission is that special plant construction for defense should be written off in three to eight years, depending somewhat upon the nature of the plant in question. For instance an armor-plate plant, useless for non-military production, should be written off quickly. An airplane engine plant, which is likely to have a peacetime use even if defense orders should slacken after two or three years, can be written off more slowly, perhaps over an eight-year period. Those are theoretical illustrations only.

Treasury Department Should Have Discretion

Legislation probably will be necessary and it is thought desirable that the treasury department should have discretion within say a three-to-eight-year period in fixing amortization allowances. Secretary Morgenthau has declined to discuss the matter publicly but it is probable that this question will be dealt with in the special excess-profits tax bill now sought by the administration.

An issue such as this brings out the differences between the industrialists and the New Dealers—the business man's demand for easy tax allowances as against the administration's traditional squeeze tactics. Yet it seems now on the way to adjustment, despite a sharp initial difference of viewpoint. This is perhaps the most stubborn question that has yet come up. Other problems, which might have become serious issues, have been adjusted with reasonable promptness because there is a marked spirit of co-operation. Roosevelt Cooperation Has Heartening Effect

In this, President Roosevelt has played no small part. There has been considerable misgiving as to how effectively he would support his defense commission. Thus far the co-operation has been all that could be desired. There is no sign of anything else. The support which the president has given in certain situations appears to have had a heartening effect not only among those connected with the defense commission but among business men who are dealing with the group. Defense production will require

They left Tuesday morning for a week's vacation at Lac du Flambeau. On their return they will spend a week with relatives at Hortonville and Shiocton. time. Public patience is short. Obstacles will be encountered. All that can be said with certainty now is that in the first month the operation has been on the satisfactory side.

The chief blow was the collapse of the airplane engine negotiations with Henry Ford. He objected to producing engines for Great Britain. Because British patents were to have been used, the defense commission could not see its way clear to allowing Ford to use them for American plane production only and refuse to produce for the British who own them. His attitude is puzzling here because Ford factories in Canada and France have been working on British and French orders.

Garbage Pickup Equipment to Be Bought for City

Council Authorizes Clerk to Seek Bids On Truck, Machinery

Kaukauna — The city council last night authorized the board of public works to advertise for bids for garbage collection equipment.

In contrast to the colorful meeting of Friday, last night's gathering was a smooth, businesslike affair, in which the city fathers acted quickly and adjourned after an hour's session.

Alderman Otto Luedtke read the report of the board of public works outlining specifications for the garbage collection equipment, and Jule Merties opened discussion of the subject.

Other business included the adoption of a new ordinance requiring that the city clerk notify the finance committee 30 days in advance when bonds and insurance policies come due. Aldermen Luedtke and William Galmbacher were appointed to the board of review, and routine business for the first of the month was transacted.

Herman Erby, Green Bay salesman for a garbage equipment distributing company, explained the type of machinery he could furnish. He suggested that a committee go with him to Green Bay to see the garbage truck in action, and to receive information on the cost of its operation in that city.

When specifications were read, Alderman George Proper moved that the board of public works advertise for bids, but Alderman Merties started a discussion of the problem.

Open Debate

"Now I am in favor of garbage collection," Merties said, "but I can't see where we're going to save any money by buying a truck and machinery. Last December a man wrote to us, offering to collect the garbage for a fee. I'd like to see him given a chance to do the job for the rest of this year. Then we could see how it works, and we'd save money."

Alderman Proper answered this suggestion, saying, "I formerly agreed with Alderman Merties, until I saw what good work Menasha does with one truck in a city of 11,000 people. We spent $3,100 for rubbish collection last year. For that amount, with good equipment, we could collect the rubbish and the garbage too."

Remarking that the cost of rubbish collection was high, Alderman Steidl said that the fault was chiefly in the heavy containers that some people use. "These large barrels are so heavy that the men on the truck can't make any time. They haul only four loads a day, while in Menasha the garbage truck takes from 12 to 13 loads a day. It can do this because frequent pick-ups make it unnecessary for people to have large containers."

"We could remedy that," Merties said, "by having an ordinance limiting the size of rubbish containers. Besides, the cost of collection is about $1,000 more on the South side than on the North, because it's in the alleys of the South side that those big containers are used."

Takes Other Side

Alderman Alger rallied to the defense of the South side, saying that the Third ward was the largest in the city, and that there was one more truck to collect from than on the North. Then he talked about the economy of buying a new truck.

"By having another truck we'll save money," Alger said. "Then we won't have to rent one when we need it. We've seen that the 50-cent collection idea didn't work last year. The people threw their garbage in the alley and we had to pick it up anyway."

"It will cost us about $2,000 for equipment, and we'll have to operate it for the rest of the year on the other $1,000 in the fund. We'll save money next year because we won't have to buy any equipment, and we can operate for about $2,300. I know my ward would like this," he added, "if we show them how we're saving money."

Merties objected that it was not necessary for the city to have another truck, since one would be idle most of the time, and that if another were needed, it could be obtained from the utility.

When costs of operation were asked, no one had an answer. Salesman Erby suggested that a committee go to Green Bay and investigate the cost of garbage collection there.

Nine Ayes, One No

When Mayor Gantner put the matter to a vote there were nine ayes, Merties voting no.

Specifications call for a one and one-half ton truck, with low ratio rear end, re-inforced frame, dual wheels, overload springs, heavy duty radiator and white paint job as part of the requirements. The garbage unit shall have a capacity of six yards and power take-offs and hoists necessary to carry on the work.

The ordinance concerning insurance and bonds requires that the city clerk notify the finance committee 30 days before old bonds and insurance become due, so that there will be ample time to consider new bids. Proper introduced the ordinance.

The council gave the utility commission authority to have two street lights installed on Merritt avenue, the street that runs along the old Appleton interurban car line past the former "Black's woods." The report of the sewage disposal plant was accepted and put on file.

Authority was granted to the fire and police commission to hire a relief policeman to serve while regular officers take their vacations. The fire department was granted $15 to send a delegate to the state firemen's convention this summer.

The fire and police commission sent a report on the state of the police squad car, saying that it had been driven 37,000 miles and that it should be given necessary repairs or traded in for a new model. The council sent the report back to the committee asking for information on costs of repairs.

South Siders Win in Boys League Contest

Kaukauna — With Mickey Walsh on the mound, the South Side Merchants won for the first round of the intermediate boys' league by defeating the Modern Shoes 11 to 9 at the library diamond yesterday morning. Battery for the winners was Walsh and Frank Giordana; for the losers, Mike Niesz, pitcher, and Darryl Ristau, catcher. Second round play in the league continued today.

Kaukauna Celebration of Fourth Will Begin Tonight

Kaukauna — The eighteenth annual Fourth of July picnic to be sponsored by the Kaukauna Post 41, American Legion, will open tonight at La Follette park and continue through tomorrow.

Committee members working with Stan Lizon and Harry Trepow, co-chairmen, have been working today and for the last two nights have been building stands to house the concessions and lunch counters that are part of the picnic.

Topping the list of entertainment is the troupe of Singing Cowboys who will perform with their trick ponies, do rope tricks and perform shooting exhibitions. These acts are free to the public. Besides the acts the legion will furnish the crowd with music all day over the loud speaking system.

A program of home talent, including singing and dancing, will be put on at the stage which has been set up before the band stand in the park.

Children will have an opportunity to compete in games and stunts. Picnickers will be able to buy dinners and suppers at the grounds. The meals will be served by the Legion auxiliary. One menu offers a steak dinner, sandwiches and coffee will be on sale all day.

Working with the co-chairmen on the committee are Al Klammer, A. M. Schmalz, Al Wagnitz, Dave Egan, Frank Bouche, L. A. Gerend, Walter Lucht, Fred Naack, Art Schubring, Walter Specht, A. Weiss, Joseph Promer, George Eimmerman, Clifford Velte, Ed Haas, Dale Andrews, Walton Cooper, Herbert Specht, Archie Creviere, Lawrence Bouche and E. E. Brewster.

July 4, 1940

This is a serious Fourth of July for America.

As great tidal waves rip and smash against our foundations, anxiety over their condition is bound to arise. How have they been tended? How repaired and conditioned? Will they hold against the terrific batterings of the storm?

The men who met a little over 150 years ago to create a democratic state on a vast and virgin continent were determined men. But they were well versed in history and government, two subjects indispensable to those who would provide steady rulership for men. They knew how fragile democracies had been in the past. They understood what reefs and rocks they had been wrecked upon. They composed an outline or constitution that contained the accumulated wisdom of the ages. The fact that we have amended it as we saw fit to fashion it more nearly to our demands has still left it basically unchanged.

Precarious as were those days in 1787 they were at least not as dangerous as those other days during the revolution when the Fourth of July was born as a national holiday. Nor were they probably any more hazardous than today when we must fit our government to an intricate and extensive machine civilization while we stretch every muscle to preserve all that was good in the past and ward off assaults that may be made if we show weakness. "Woe to the weak!"

The government formed in the long ago has outlasted practically all the governments that existed in the world at that time. Born at a time when democracy was a bitter jibe upon the lips of men as it is on the continent of Europe today, it has led the course of civilization, invention and human resourcefulness and given fine proof that in freedom there is more of peace, progress and prosperity over an average period of years than is to be obtained even from the most energetic and gifted peoples sweating under oppression.

The menaces of a democracy are greed, war and moral collapse of a people.

And upon the birthday of the greatest and most successful democracy the world has ever known it would be wise to center eyes upon those menaces.

Moe Lost a Bet

Moe Annenberg is paying a heavy penalty for violation of the federal income tax law, but not too heavy when the details are looked at.

Annenberg had great ingenuity and resourcefulness in making money, in capitalizing the weaknesses and demands of human nature and organizing a thousand points to drop sap which combined into a gush of profits near the pump handle.

But when Annenberg pled guilty at Chicago his was no formal plea. He was guilty coming and going, sideways and up and down. He employed an Insull-like structure of numerous corporations to conceal his assets and his profits. And the more millions he made and the richer he became, the tighter he choked his bank accounts into submission. His crime was not only a violation of law, it was a mania for money, profits, property and power until he forgot there was any law.

He even used the names of his wife and eight children to hide bank accounts and the ownership of corporate interests and spent tens of thousands lavishly upon himself only to charge it all up on the books of some company as an expense in the obtaining of business. When a daughter got married he paid out $7,000 for the parties and attributed the expense to sending representatives to a convention.

Drunk with power and stuffed with money Annenberg's methods became increasingly coarse and careless. He was as smooth as a file and only as smart as the race track suckers he shook down.

It was obvious when Annenberg pled guilty that he was guilty all over. Otherwise a trial would have been easily handled. And one of the softest things in this country is to "beat the rap" in any criminal charge of violating the income tax laws.

This is so because nobody can make head or tail to the laws, and will become increasingly evident as the number of people in the country by recent amendment are required to make returns. Taxpayers learn that they cannot make accurate returns. But, of course, that is quite different from keeping crooked books and making a business of dishonest returns.

When a multi-millionaire, who has been as devious as Annenberg admits about himself, is sent to prison it doesn't do democracy any harm.

Italo Balbo and the New Dealers

It might look like quite a stretch of the imagination to say that events at Washington are closely related to the charred remains in a broken mass of airplane metal burning out on the sands of Libya. But the connection is much closer than the miles between would indicate.

Balbo was one of the great heroes of Italy, an architect of its present government. He it was who led 24 airplanes across the Atlantic to New York and then took a dozen across the South Atlantic to Rio. He became the inspiration leading the Italian air force to high standards of valor and efficiency and was much admired for his vivacious, dynamic personality.

So when he died, through an unforeseeable accident and far from war's alarms, the Fascists dragged the burned remains of the body into prominence by falsely feeding their people the fiction that he was killed in battle bravely facing dreadful British odds. This is an old makeshift and it goes over fine in a land where it is a smelly prison to him who tries to print or tell the truth.

The false romance of Balbo's death is expected to fire many another young Italian to reckless courage when he may otherwise be having trouble with his conscience over the war in which he is engaged.

The New Deal has been playing this same Balbo game. It is a grand nurse of great names. Long after Senator Norris, aged and tired to death, tried to retire from public life, the New Dealers kept him primed and primed because his name meant much to those who have not observed the natural physical and mental decay that the inexorable years have taken. And Owen D. Young, famed head of General Electric, retired because of age and the infirmities that come with the years, is pressed into the war program to try to cheer up the multitude who are looking upon Washington with misgivings and wondering how fellows who couldn't build a safe dam in Nebraska and would support such crazy ventures as Quoddy and the Florida Ship Canal and would mislead and misrepresent about practically all other governmental ventures could be trusted with the life and death matter of the national defense.

Italy creates a nursery tale concerning Balbo's death. America employs great names to cover and disguise its national conduct. So did France. It cajoled the people with the names of Weygand and Petain, both far too old for active service, the latter so ancient American correspondents noticed a great weariness in his eyes after a few moments' conversation.

No, Mussolini isn't the only show man.

Trotsky Speaks His Mind

From Mexico City Leon Trotsky conveys his compliments to Comrade Stalin by word. It is not convenient for the bloody Leon to return the call recently made upon him by some friendly agents of the Kremlin who mistakenly shot off machine guns.

But Trotsky's explanation of what has happened in Europe is accurate despite the shakes from which he has just recovered. He points out that during the last five years Russia covered the world with a subtle propaganda whose purpose was "an alliance of democracies" and "People's Fronts" or "Popular Fronts," with the sole purpose of stopping the spread of power in the hands of vicious "Fascist aggressors." We have reason to remember this campaign because it was discussed here in America with an attempt of the Reds to shake hands with the Catholic Church and the avowed assertion, solemnly and unctiously made, that the purpose of communism was perfectly consistent with Catholicism.

Trotsky points out that this propaganda made its greatest advance in France where it had a tremendous influence on the masses of the people.

And yet when war was declared the Kremlin abandoned the alliance with democracies and deserted the "people's Fronts" by supporting the very "Fascist aggressors" who were so violently denounced.

Trotsky's interview doesn't really add anything to the general knowledge of communist leaders. "Criminal scum," the expression coined by Hitler in describing them, is one thing to be found in Mein Kampf with which the world may readily agree.

Opinions of Others

ANOTHER REASON

For a number of years, statisticians have been bombarding the nation with figures showing that the population will become stationary in about a generation, then start declining.

In this connection, recent figures show an interesting trend. In 1915, when birth registration figures were first tabulated on the present basis, 251 babies were born for each 1,000 people. The absolute low was reached in 1933, at 16.5. Since that time, the rate has increased again to 17.6 in 1938.

That plainly suggests that when people face a discouraging economic outlook they don't have as many babies as they do when times look a little better. Which is just one more excellent reason, if any more reasons should seem necessary, for concentrating on building up our own economy in the face of a tragic world.—Pittsburgh Press.

BY DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

Washington—There was a lot of immediate jubilation in New Deal circles over the nomination of Wendell Willkie on the basis that he was a power-trust-J. P. Morgan mogul and therefore easy to beat. However, sober-minded reflection from Democratic realists is now the opposite.

They recognize that whether the GOP bosses liked him or not, the Republicans have nominated a man who will give Roosevelt or any other Democratic candidate the fight of his life. Political "oomph," in their opinion, counts for more than the power trust handicap, and there is no getting away from the fact that Willkie is the oomph wonder of present-day politics.

All this sharpens the issue of the third term. More than ever it puts the future of the Democratic party solely in the hands of one man.

For all the Democratic realists admit that Franklin Roosevelt is the only man who can win against Willkie, Cordell Hull would seem a kindly old saint from the early pages of American history compared with the young political dynamo who cleaned up Philadelphia on the fifth ballot.

FDR SHUNS 3RD TERM

Meanwhile, those who have talked to Roosevelt in recent weeks get the impression that he definitely and genuinely does not want to run. The word he gave Colonel Frank Knox—that Secretary Hull was his candidate—he has also repeated with monotonous rhythm to many others. He has appeared tired and very much discouraged at the way things have been going in Europe. He has said that he does not see why it is up to him to carry the burden for the Democratic party.

Also, he has made the point that in these days of encroaching dictatorships, the United States should avoid making any move which might appear, even by precedent, to be a step toward dictatorship.

So consistent has Roosevelt been in saying this that one of his close friends, a Supreme court justice, has been telephoning Roosevelt's friends in New York asking them to urge the president to run.

Only one deviation from this line of reasoning has crept into the president's conversation. This is the challenge of Hitler. Roosevelt regards the foe as the greatest menace this country ever has faced; a challenge to everything the American people stand for; likewise a challenge to Roosevelt. And he would like to be in the vanguard of those who eventually down Hitler.

NO OTHER DEMOCRAT

However, there is another situation which is important. This is the precarious position in which the Democratic party finds itself if Roosevelt does not run. With two weeks to go before the Chicago convention there is absolutely no other Democrat built up sufficiently to take the ball and carry it. The president has virtually all the delegates pledged to him. The whole convention will be centered on Roosevelt and on no other man.

In other words, Roosevelt will have to run or else it means sure Democratic defeat. Furthermore, if he should back out at the last minute, a tide of resentment would flood against him from those who felt he had let them down—a deluge unequalled since the storm of bitterness against Teddy Roosevelt when he was almost nominated in 1916 but proposed Henry Cabot Lodge instead. The convention refused to accept Lodge, chose Charles Evans Hughes and never forgave T.R.

Faced with a similar situation at Chicago, the Democrats might follow Roosevelt's advice and nominate Cordell Hull, but against Willkie they could not elect him.

In other words, it looks as if Roosevelt, whether he wants to run or not, will have to come through. So barring the unpredictable, you can be pretty sure that the candidates you will have to choose between in November, 1940, are Willkie and Roosevelt.

Note—At least one member of Roosevelt's cabinet will vote for Willkie if Hull is nominated.

TWO IMMIGRANTS

On the night before the immigration bureau was transferred from the labor department to the justice department, immigration officials staged a farewell party with Madame Perkins as the principal speaker. As secretary of labor she had made no protest against the removal of the agency from her jurisdiction, but on this occasion she spoke her mind.

"I am proud of the humane record of the bureau," Miss Perkins said. "It has always been our policy to remember that the immigrant of today is the citizen of tomorrow. It has been our policy to make the entry of immigrants at Ellis Island a friendly and sympathetic welcome. It is my fervent hope that this will continue to be the bureau's policy."

"Some of you have been in the service long enough to have been on hand when years ago a tow-haired boy from Denmark went through Ellis Island as an immigrant seeking opportunity in our country. That little boy realized his dreams and today William Knudsen is patriotically serving his adopted country as a member of the National Defense council."

"Some of you have been in the service long enough to have been on hand when years ago a curly-haired boy from Lithuania went through Ellis Island as an immigrant seeking opportunity here. That little boy also realized his dreams and today Sidney Hillman is patriotically serving his adopted country as a member of the National Defense council."

"Always remember that our country was founded, settled and made great by immigrants."

MAIL BAG

L.M. St. Paul—Governor Stassen's charge that Roosevelt had caused the country to be unprepared was hardly based upon fact. Actually, Roosevelt has done a better job of building up the navy than any other peace time president. During the first four years of Roosevelt, the army got about the same treatment as under Hoover, but in the last three years army appropriations shot up sky high. As a matter of fact, Roosevelt went even further than congress and took money out of PWA funds for the army and navy, until congress inserted a clause in the PWA bill preventing him from doing this. He was much more defense-minded than congress.

C.K. Syracuse, N.Y.—Contrary to previous reports, the Brill Car Manufacturing Company, a subsidiary of American Car and Foundry, W.S.M., Worcester, Mass.—A Merry-Go-Round story to the effect that the only place where the Stars and Stripes flies day and night was the Capitol Building has brought us many letters calling attention to other cities where the flag flies continually. We are glad to note among these the tomb of Francis Scott Key, author of the national anthem, at Frederick, Md.; also the Worcester, Mass., World War Memorial.

GERMAN INVASION OF ENGLAND

Editor Post-Crescent—The English are trying to convince everyone that they think the crossing of the channel by the Germans will never be successful. They point out that the sea is their defense and that the English navy will control it to make the landing of a hostile army impossible. They say it is one thing for the Germans to push their steamroller all over the continent but quite another to span the channel.

Naturally we expect that any nation should make a show of confidence in itself, but we must also remember that there also is such a thing as wishful thinking. Let's review a little history and try to discover whether the English have grounds for their assertion that the British Isles are impregnable, or if they are trying to win this war by use of the pen.

Julius Caesar first did the job and England saw the Roman legions on her soil. Britain then became a Roman province. Roman law and Roman civilization came to Britain. The remains of the old Roman structures still exist in England today. One example of this is the Roman Wall which they built all the way across the country.

Next followed the Jutes, the Angles and Saxons who came over continental Europe to help themselves to large slices of British territory. Then came the Danes, who settled all over the islands.

Then came the last invasion in 1066. That was when William the Conqueror came over from Normandy in France.

Of course, Napoleon was stopped in his tracks because the English destroyed his fleet at Trafalgar, but today the story is vastly different.

German long range guns on the German held coast in France can clear the channel of the English navy while the transporting of troops in a general attack on England goes on.

Today Hitler can concentrate his striking power on England while Napoleon was fighting off Austria and Russia, while this time Hitler has Italy on his side.

There is a strong possibility that Spain might attempt to get back Gibraltar, thus bottling up the English Mediterranean fleet, which would be able to give much needed aid to the home defense.

The odds at this time even seem to favor Hitler because the present situation of a defeated France, Holland, Belgium, Norway and Poland was never deemed a possibility by the ones who are responsible for the conduct of the war in England. The Britons didn't dream at the beginning of this war that they would be forced into a battle for Britain.

The real seriousness of the situation became apparent to them only with the fall of France.

Herr Hitler will lose no time in getting at England, because he realizes that in the short time since the fall of France, the British will not have been able to construct any formidable line of defense capable of withstanding an onslaught which has no doubt been planned in every detail a long, long time ago.

A few days ago Mr. Hearst published an editorial admonishing Hitler not to cross the channel, that he was doomed to failure.

Leading English papers knew that reading material of this kind was good stuff for home consumption and therefore played it prominently on front pages.

It's too bad that some English publisher didn't advance Mr. Hearst's warnings and reasonings to Mr. Hitler a long time before Mr. Hearst ever thought of it. But then maybe the English aren't so cocksure that their island is impregnable and that is why they refrained from talking like Mr. Hearst did.

Maybe that is why the English papers grabbed at Mr. Hearst's article like a drowning man clutching at any straw, in order to bolster the morale of their people.

Just a Step Behind the News

By Dave Boone

The way congress is now voting billions for war defense makes a fellow feel pretty safe. We are getting as prepared as pen and pencil can make us and are already strong enough to defeat any nation that will hold off four or five years.

The trouble with this rush of appropriations is that it gives us all a feeling of security, especially if we don't stop to realize that appropriations are no defense until they are turned into ships and guns and planes. It is like saying to a defenseless cashier who suddenly finds himself surrounded by heavily armed gangsters, "Don't be afraid. Here is some money for you to take a physical culture course."

What the country can do without delay is to start arming itself spiritually and morally. Bad as it is to be caught in a war with weapons "on order," it is worse to be caught with ideals, standards and stamina "on order." Every time Washington appropriates another few hundred million dollars to defend America it ought to issue a plain statement saying, "Listen, folks, this won't mean a thing for years, so don't get back into those rompers and think everything has been taken care of."

Llano, Tex.—(P)—Glancing out of a train window, Conductor H. Hamilton saw a dog tangled in a wire fence along the right-of-way. He halted the train long enough to release the deer.

LET'S REMEMBER WHAT THE FIREWORKS IS ABOUT.

Under the CAPITOL DOME

BY JOHN WYNGAARD

Madison—The nomination by the national Republican convention of Wendell L. Willkie for the presidency has at least three significant results for Wisconsin politics in the 1940 campaign.

1. It gives Governor Heil, as the only ranking Wisconsin Republican who went to Philadelphia a prestige in national party councils which he has sought and longed for in vain since he ascended to position and power two years ago.

2. It makes it necessary for two leaders of the Wisconsin Republican delegation, who bitterly opposed Willkie's candidacy, to eat crow in their reelection campaign.

3. It furnishes the Progressive party a new excuse for resurrecting their favorite campaign instrument, the utilities issue.

There has been no particular secret about the fact that the national headquarters of the GOP has not been proud of Wisconsin's Heil and his record in office. State Republicans have not been blind to the fact that national headquarters publicly, devoting reams of space to such men as Bushfield, Stassen, Vandenberg, James, and other new Republican governors, has generally ignored or dismissed in a brief non-committal paragraph Julius Heil of the Badger state.

PICKS A WINNER

Now, however, Heil has the distinction of being the only important Wisconsin Republican who picked Willkie as a winner. Although he never stood up in public to say so, most informed Republicans knew where Heil stood at Philadelphia, and it is well known that he tried to persuade the steadfast Wisconsin Develoy delegates to get on the bandwagon. That, he feels that his presence is shown in the governor's announcement as the convention closed that from now on he intends to exert his authority as head of the Wisconsin Republican party.

Still more interesting to behold, however, is the position of Congressman Stephen Bolles and Frank Keefe, both of whom left no doubt of their opposition to the presidential nominee in the early days of the convention.

Both are on record as opposing him because his philosophy and point of view on current issues are not consistent with their, and other Republicans', records in congress. Bolles has been quoted as saying that he would rather have Roosevelt in the White House than Willkie, a statement which he now emphatically denies.

UTILITY QUESTION

For its effect on the purely local character of the Wisconsin campaign this year, however, the Willkie nomination is important for the manner in which it will effect the Progressive attack of the Heil administration.

First blast comes from Progressive candidate Harold Stafford, who has close feelers into the inner circle of the Progressive party organization. By his support of Willkie, alleges Stafford, Governor Heil has demonstrated that he is a "boson pal of the power trust."

The Progressive anxiety to hitch their traditional utility issue to the Willkie candidacy is revealing in the light of the comments of such men as Bolles, Keefe, Zimmerman and others, who openly observed at Philadelphia the unlikelihood that a utilities magnate could make a strong popular appeal in Wisconsin.

The Progressive party and its stump speakers have been hitting in certain directions for so many years—the sales tax and the utilities are two of the best examples—that they have made the Republicans cautious.

Personal Health Talks

BY WILLIAM BRADY, M. D.
Noted Physician and Author

NUTRITIONAL DEPRIVITY

Habitual, regular, moderate or periodical drinkers are generally below par in physical health—the inevitable result of alcoholism, not the cause of the craving. In recent years, for instance, it has been shown that the multiple neuritis which nearly or quite disables or paralyzes so many drinkers is due, not to the alcohol they consume, but rather to the prolonged shortage of vitamin B. complex in their diet.

In the Lambert method of treating dipomania (particulars of which I am glad to send a physician on request if he provides a stamped envelope bearing his address—I can give no details to others than doctors of medicine), after the first few days of treatment "a good vigorous non-alcoholic tonic should be given at regular intervals." Perhaps that means something or other thirty years ago, when Dr. Lambert gave the method to the medical profession. A tonic, according to the medical dictionary, is a remedy which improves or restores enfeebled function and promotes vigor and a sense of well being. That covers considerable latitude: fresh air, sunshine, cheerful surroundings, regular exercise or play, occupation, work, avocation, wholesome food, medicine, sufficient rest.

My own notion is that the prolonged moderate shortage of vitamins in the diet of most Americans is itself one of the causes of the craving for alcohol, and as already mentioned it is now well established clinically that the intake of essential vitamins falls still lower when alcoholic liquor replaces more essential fuel in the metabolism—the drinker gets a considerable share of calories from alcohol and hence has less appetite for or demand for natural food.

The tonic par excellence for the inebriate or the dipomanic, or the fool who is training for such a career or fooling around the edges of chronic alcoholism, is, in my opinion, an optional daily ration of the essential vitamins in one or another concentrated form—aside from the selection of foods which naturally contain the largest amounts of the essential vitamins.

By essential vitamins I mean the vitamins most commonly deficient, vitamin B complex, vitamin D, vitamin A, vitamin C—named in the order of their importance.

By optimal daily ration I mean a great deal more of the vitamin or vitamins in question than may be necessary to prevent manifestations of deficiency disease, and more than may be ordinarily required to maintain good functional health, for such a tonic must first restore the body's reserve supply when there has been prolonged depletion.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Blood Test for Carbon Monoxide
How can air be tested for traces of carbon monoxide? (L. S.)

Answer—Make a solution of a few drops of blood in water in test tube. Divide it into two parts. Shake up one part thoroly with pure air. This makes a yellow solution. Shake up the other part thoroly with the suspected air. If it makes a pink solution the air contains carbon monoxide.

Training for Diabetes

I have profited greatly from your recent articles on diabetes and pre-diabetes. You have the faculty of expressing in plain language the important points the physician wants his patients to grasp—only he is not always able to teach them as well as you do. (M. D.)

Answer—Thank you, Doctor. The series of articles dealing with the nature, cause, prevention and treatment of diabetes has been incorporated in a booklet "Training for Diabetes"—available to any reader on request. Enclose ten cents coin and stamped envelope bearing your address.

Modern Treatment

I am 59, chef, weighed 240 pounds, now down to 210 and still going strong on your reduction diet. On my feet eight hours daily, feel like a two-year-old. Have recently completed injection treatment of a hernia I had for twenty years. I believe it is now cured. Dr. . . . . to whom you referred me for the treatment, is a fine type of doctor and certainly knows his business. (M. W. S.)

Answer—Thank you. It is pleasant to know that my teachings have proved helpful. The doctor who treated you is noted throughout the country as an authority on the subject.

Fruit Acid

Whom can a poor layman believe? One doctor warns against acid fruits and other foods. Another advises that such foods be eaten freely. In one article you said a person with acid stomach should avoid the citrus fruits. In another you declared that such acids actually decrease the acidity in the blood and urine. It is confusing. (C. G.)

Answer—Acidity of the stomach has nothing to do with alkalinity of the blood or the acidity of the urine. The fruit acids, with no important exception for the ordinary person, are oxidized in the body into alkaline salts and hence tend to increase alkalinity in the blood, decrease acidity in the urine. In regard to the diet in cases of hyperacidity in the stomach, peptic ulcer, etc., see "So You Have Indigestion?"—copy of booklet mailed on request if you enclose ten cents coin and stamped envelope bearing your address.

Ben Told

I have worn only briefs and silk socks the year around for the past ten years. Have been told that this is dangerous and will certainly bring on rheumatism or tuberculosis eventually. (I am twenty-eight and perfectly well so far as I know. (F. L.)

Ans.—I'd go on dressing as I preferred—but if you see the cops closing in you had better put on some pants or something.

Looking Backward

10 YEARS AGO

Wednesday, July 2, 1930
The "City of Chicago," flown by Kenneth and John Hunter, had passed its 500th consecutive hour in the air and continued on its world's record-breaking endurance flight. Babe Ruth hit his thirty-fourth home run of the season that day in the fifth inning of the first Yankee-Chicago game.

25 YEARS AGO

Wednesday, July 7, 1915
A bill board light was on with crews of the Sells Floto circus and the Barnum and Bailey show plastering the city with their advertisements and struggling for choice bill board positions. Shortly after 7 o'clock this morning a foot of packing in the elbow of the 24-inch main in front of the pumping station blew out, causing the city to be shut off from water all morning. The standpipe was full at the time but Fire Chief McGillan advised that he held in reserve for fire purposes until the trouble was corrected.

Maturity Shown As Factor In Achievement at College

"There seems to be some justification for giving the older student a college education even if his intelligence rating is slightly below the average of the college which he attends."

This is the conclusion of Charles D. Flory, associate professor of psychology at Lawrence college, after completing a study of the situation through the comparison of the skeletal maturity and achievement of college freshmen.

Using the x-rays of the hands of 101 students entering the institution, Dr. Flory discovered that while the youngest group in maturity was slightly more intelligent, the more matured was not significantly different in achievement. These findings suggest that physiological maturity does have some effect on the ability to do well in college.

The older mature students, even when somewhat less intelligent, are likely to exceed immature students in achievement. Dr. Flory makes no contention that maturity is a more important factor than intelligence, but rather suggests that physiological maturity is a factor that affects academic achievement in the freshman year. Although there are wide individual variations, counselors and teachers who are aware of the physiological limitations placed upon immature individuals should be more sympathetic in handling these growing students who find their way into freshman classes.

A report of this study was published recently in the Journal of the American Association of College Registrars. Dr. Flory is the educator who a short time ago debunked the idea of brain fatigue on the part of students.

Russia Again Power

The upshot was that the straits were left in the hands of defeated Turkey, and later (1936) Turkey even was authorized to fortify them.

In the world war Russia was Britain's ally, and necessity dictated an allied promise assisting Russia freedom of the straits after Germany's and Turkey's defeat.

But after the war the world looked different. The Russian bolshevik regime, fearing the British fleet and capitalist intervention, saw the Dardanelles as an entrance for invaders rather than as an exit for Russians and demanded that the straits be closed to warships. Britain, no longer fearing Russian sea-power near the Suez canal—since bolshevism Russia's military impotence was obvious—wanted them kept open.

Help for Turkey

Naturally, without destruction of the Ottoman empire Russia could not hope to dominate the straits. But England, France and Austria, as Mediterranean powers, could not tolerate the thought of a Russian fleet in the Mediterranean. So their policy for a long time was directed toward bolstering up this Ottoman "sick man of Europe."

Russian defiance of this policy in 1853 led to the Crimean war with France and England, and in later years Russian attempt to circumvent it were at the bottom of many a diplomatic crisis.

Protests because of odors from the General Chemical company on Ahnapp street were referred to the board of health. The street committee was given power to buy five tires for a city truck. The street committee also will prepare plans for terminals to two streets in the Second ward. A sickle attachment for a power mower was purchased for the street department.

County Police Seek Hit-Run Death Driver

Jury Decides Solis Met Death Through Unavoidable Accident

Neenah—As Winnebago county police continued a search for a hit and run driver, a coroner's jury late Tuesday afternoon following an inquest at city hall found that Albert Solis, 38, route 2, Neenah met his death through an "unavoidable accident."

Solis, a Mexican, was killed instantly when struck by a hit and run driver after he had been knocked off his bicycle in a collision with another car about 10 o'clock Monday night on Highway 150, two miles west of Neenah.

Testimony taken at the inquest revealed that Solis was knocked to the pavement when his bicycle collided with the side of an automobile driven by Holger Skatte, Winchester, and while Solis was lying or kneeling on the pavement, another machine, traveling at a high rate of speed, ran over Solis' prostrate body and the bicycle.

Sheriff Paul Neubauer reported that county police are seeking the driver of the hit and run car but that police had few clues to aid them in their search. Witnesses were unable to offer much information as to the identification of the car.

Give Testimony
Testimony was taken from Holger Skatte, the driver of the car; his son, Warren, Neenah, who was a passenger in his father's car; Barney Clark, Menasha, of the Winnebago county highway police; Norman Hooper and Alfred Lange, Neenah firemen, who operated the ambulance which carried Solis to Theda Clark hospital; Dr. G. A. Steele, county coroner, and Ellena Gonzales, stepdaughter of the dead man.

On the jury were Cornelius Quinn, Roy Stroemer, William J. Dowling, Casper Olson, Leo Nielson and George Kraus, Jr., District Attorney Lewis C. Magnusen conducted the inquest.

Warren Skatte told the jury that he and his father noticed the cyclist riding west on Highway 150, and that the wheel was weaving in an erratic manner. The Skatte car was going east and the driver slowed down as it approached the cyclist but Solis swerved into the side of the car, Skatte told the jury. Trying to avoid the collision, the elder Skatte drove his car into the ditch, the son said.

Warren testified that the vampire car was traveling west when it ran over the inert man, then slowed down momentarily and sped away. He said that he tried to wave the car down. He was unable to give a good description of the car.

The two firemen described the position of the man's body on the pavement, while Patrolman Clark told the jury that the information given him by the two Skattes following the accident was identical to the testimony they gave at the inquest.

Dr. Steele, who reported that Solis died instantly from a multiple skull fracture and fractures of the left clavicle, right arm, wrist, leg, ankle and hand, said the skull fracture may have been caused by the fall to the pavement after the collision with the Skatte car, but said of course it was not possible to determine which impact caused the fracture. He further stated that it seemed highly impossible that the other numerous fractures could have been the result of the collision with the Skatte car.

The 15-year-old Gonzales girl testified that she had seen her stepfather Monday evening at Theda Clark hospital, where her mother is confined.

Tavern Loop Rivalry Hits New Peak When Manager Is 'Buried'

Menasha — In the National baseball league the Giants and the Brooklyn Dodgers have their own private rivalry and the White Sox and the Cubs battle it out in the Chicago city series each year, but both those contests are commonplace in comparison with the rivalry of the Menasha Tavern League.

When the Falcon Black Panthers knocked the Fish Fry team out of first place with a 1 to 0 victory Tuesday night at the Green, they marked the occasion with solemn rites. The two teams had been in a tie for first place but after the game the Panthers proceeded to bury George Kolasinski, manager of the Fish Fry team.

Six stalwart Panthers paraded into the tavern with a coffin in which lay the remains of George Kolasinski, chewed to death by the Black Panthers. The body was surrounded with tiger lilies and other flowers and six large candles were placed around the coffin.

As for the ball game, Tony Buzanowski scored the winning run on an error. Dulex, on the mound for the Panthers, allowed the Fish Fry team only four hits. Pat Romnek was the losing pitcher even though he set down the Panthers on two feeble hits.

The Falcons must have had a premonition of what was to come for before the game they sent Kolasinski a single penny with a black ribbon around it. And while the Falcons are celebrating their victory, the Fish Fry players are muttering, "Just wait until next time."

The group formed themselves into a "D. J. Kenney for the U. S. Senate club," and elected Earl E. Fuller, county treasurer, as chairman. Following the close of the caucus meeting, the new organization was formed.

The county Republicans voted unanimous approval of the selection of Wendell Willkie as presidential candidate and Charles McNary as the vice-presidential nominee and pledged their support in the campaign. ## Want Courts to Make State Pay More for Relief

Whole System Will Be Tested in Lawsuit By Badger Municipalities

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau Madison — The Heil administration's financing of the state's share of the Wisconsin relief load, already considerably confused as the result of legal tangles during the last year, may be upset once more by litigation, it was disclosed here today.

Fred Armstrong, Madison attorney formerly employed by the state welfare department, said that he has been retained by several Wisconsin municipalities to bring court action to prove the invalidity of the present state relief system.

Basis of the action, he said, is the provision in the 1933 relief law, never repealed, that the state must share 50 per cent of their relief burdens with all local governments.

Will Make Claims — Armstrong said that a claim for such reimbursement will shortly be presented by half a dozen Waukesha county communities to the state emergency board. If the claims are disallowed—as they probably will be because of the shortage of available funds—the claim will be taken to court, he said.

Administration of state relief has been confused and haphazard ever since early in 1937 when the legislature apparently intended to change the 50 per cent reimbursement provision to 5 per cent. At that time, however, the legislature, according to Armstrong failed to repeal the 50 per cent clause, and when Governor LaFollette vetoed the 5 per cent provision, the 50 per cent obligation remained in effect, although it was never brought up by the local governments of the state.

Again Vetoed — In the 1939 legislature the procedure was repeated. The legislature appropriated $5,000,000 and handed it to the state emergency board for disbursement, with the condition, however, that local governments again were to be guaranteed 5 per cent. Again the governor—in this case Julius Heil—vetoed the pro-rating provision. Subsequently Attorney General John E. Martin ruled the entire appropriation unconstitutional because the legislature had improperly delegated its powers to the emergency board when it gave that body discretionary power over the expenditure of the appropriation.

As a result, the emergency board today is doling out, in exceedingly small amounts, funds from its own $750,000 annual appropriation, and accumulated receipts from 1937 relief taxes. The average monthly payment lately has been about $130,000, most of it used for administrative expenses in the localities which are hardest hit financially. Most cities and counties now receive no aid whatever for their relief expenses from the state.

The potential importance of the Armstrong contention is made evident in the fact that the total general relief load in Wisconsin this year will be around $15,000,000. If the courts uphold the claim that the state must pay half of that amount, it will inevitably wreck Governor Heil's budget balancing plans.

Pegler Points to Mantraps In News Guild Constitution

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER New York—I would like to point out, especially to newspaper workers, a couple of cunning mantraps concealed beneath the constitution of the American Newspaper Guild, which is a transmission belt of the Communist party.

Members, and non-members who are tempted to join, innocently assume that because this C.I.O. union purports to be a voluntary association they may resign at will. The fact is that once a person joins the guild claims him for life. Many members have offered their resignations and others have just dropped out, believing that was all there was to it.

The guild constitution, however, takes the position that a member who attempts to quit merely becomes delinquent unless he enters some other occupation outside the newspaper business, in which case certain obligations still pursue him. If he quits and remains in the newspaper business he accumulates a mounting bill of dues, assessments and fines during the period of his estrangement. If, years afterward, under the compulsion of the closed shop, he is forced to request reinstatement, he finds that he is liable for the whole bill, payable on the barrelhead before he can hang up his hat and go to work. The total may be so great that he cannot raise the money, in which case the guild has the right to bar him from his legitimate occupation.

The guild may scale the bill down to $2, but can insist on the whole debt. If the applicant is a person of spirit, who has denounced the communist control of the guild and still refuses to placate the communists, the guild can refuse to reinstate him at all.

Newspaper workers outside the communist circle seem not to appreciate the hidden provisions of the guild constitution. That is understandable, because the trick or trap provisions are written in negative form.

The document does not say in so many words, for example, that non-members who never have been members must, nevertheless, abide by its decisions and discipline. The constitution obtains the same effect, however, by providing that an applicant may be rejected if he has ever worked in a shop where there was a strike. But the guild may call a strike of its own members, even if they are a small minority of a whole staff. If there are seven guild members in a shop, and four non-members among them vote to strike, those four may place a hundred non-members in danger of future exclusion from the guild if they continue to work.

Meaning of Provisions Is Slightly Concealed — If the guild should ever obtain the universal closed shop in the whole American press the non-strikers would be ineligible for newspaper work everywhere in the United States. And if the C. I. O. should extend the closed shop to all other occupations, according to plan, those non-strikers could be barred from all unemployment forever.

This provision is reinforced with another passage, but even that meaning is slightly concealed. In order to construct the intention you have to piece together Section 11 of Article X and Section 1. Subsection (E) of Article XII. However, it confirms the hidden purpose of the negative provisions which I have been explaining. There is no denying the intent.

The claim to perpetual power over those who do join is expressed by clever indirection. On this point the constitution says a member designates the guild as his collective bargaining agent. That seems innocent enough. But this designation may terminate only if he is expelled or goes into some other line of work. It does not terminate if he attempts to resign. Resignation is not recognized at all under any circumstances.

In New Occupation, He Must Join Up — If he enters another business he may withdraw, but not resign, and even then he is obliged to join the union, if any, established for workers in his new occupation. And if he ever returns to the newspaper business he must immediately rejoin the guild. If he fails to rejoin he becomes delinquent.

The constitution is so drawn that non-members are threatened with an economic death sentence for failure to obey its orders, and members can never escape, even though they should feel their patriotic duty to dissociate themselves from an organization controlled by communists under discipline from Moscow.

The communists, and possibly some genuine Americans in the guild membership who have neglected to study the constitution, probably will deny this information and denounce it as red-baiting and anti-union propaganda.

But you submit the guild constitution to any non-communist lawyer and see what he says.

New Rubbish Collection Plan Being Given Trial at Kimberly

Kimberly — New rubbish containers made by the NYA sheet metal works at the high school will be placed in the village for a month's trial, Village President Lloyd Lang, told members of the board at a meeting Monday evening. One hundred will be ordered made and placed in four sections of the village, with 25 in each section. If the plan is successful, each family will be provided with a container.

The containers will be for ashes and tin cans as all garbage and combustible material must be burned. Waste on the ground will not be picked up by the village crew. The new boxes are built so that they can be taken inside and placed along side of the furnace during the winter months for ashes.

Collection of ashes and tin cans under the plan would be made once a week on a date set so that tenants can have their ash can outside in an available place for the village crew to pick up. Under the new setup the old garbage can would be abolished. President Lang asserted that in regards to the cleanup work in the village, especially in the spring, alleys were unsightly with frozen garbage, ashes and cans, which would be eliminated under this plan. Twenty boys at the high school are taking a sheet metal training course in the NYA program which has been in progress for about three weeks, with Henry Patch as instructor.

The board will meet at 7 o'clock next Monday evening to make plans for a WPA program throughout the winter months. Bills and claims amounting to $6,112.82 were read and approved. The electrical inspectors' report was read and a check covering licenses for $48.50 was approved.

Mrs. Oscar Ehke, chairman of the Red Cross drive, reported that $61 was turned over to the Red Cross. This amount was taken from the box at Fieweger's store. A second box, near the clock at the Kimberly mill entrance, has not yet been opened.

Mrs. Fred Dowling and son of Huntington Park, Calif., visited Tuesday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ray Mauthe. Other guests were Mrs. Richard Meidl, and Mrs. Walter Danke of Dale.

Vast Defense Plan Due in Coming Week

creating and installing tools to turn out the complicated mechanisms.

Also today, the navy let contracts for three aircraft carriers and two cruisers.

It was established authoritatively that the new supplementary defense plan will cover all the things the army has any intention of seeking at the present time. More than $5,000,000 already has been appropriated at this session of congress for defense.

One individual who keeps closely in touch with the defense picture said the new program was intended to get aircraft expansion "under full steam." By the summer or fall of 1941, he said, the United States will be well on the way to an air fighting force which would surpass anything that any nation now can put in the air, if congress approves the recommendations.

The plan is expected to emphasize mechanization of the armed forces.

It was understood that while the army's share of the program was all set to go, the navy was brought in at the last minute so that the president might lay before congress and the public a complete picture of the immediate defense aims of the administration.

Award Contracts

The army and navy have put their pens to more than $1,000,000 worth of defense contracts during the last month, a recapitulation showed today.

The contracts—covering items from beans to bombers—represent, for the most part, the first big block of expenditure commitments in the $4,500,000,000 cash program voted by congress for the fiscal year which began July 1.

Reports of this progress came as the senate naval committee scheduled consideration of the unprecedented $4,000,000,000 navy expansion bill which would authorize a 70 per cent jump in fleet strength. The house already has approved the measure.

In compiling the billion dollar contract record, the navy led the way with orders for 87 vessels at a cost of $910,279,000. The sum represents hull construction and machinery only. At least $250,000,000 more will be required to complete equipment of the ships.

The awarding of the navy contracts put under way all the 11 per cent fleet expansion voted earlier this month, with the exception of two cruisers and three aircraft carriers.

Defense developments yesterday included:

President Roosevelt, acting on legislative authorization, imposed a stringent curb on the export of numerous vital war materials and machinery in order to safeguard the country against shortages.

Sidney Hillman, labor specialist of the defense commission, enlisted the services of 16 A. F. of L. and CIO leaders to assist him in working out a unified labor policy in defense industries.

The senate naval committee gave quick approval to legislation authorizing construction of a $15,000,000 dry dock in New York harbor, capable of handling the biggest American warships and liners.

10 Junk Dealers Given Licenses

Ten applications for licenses to collect junk in Appleton were approved by the city council's license committee last night.

The application of Louis Simon, who has a building at Bateman and Hancock street, was denied because the building is not in proper condition. A recent wind storm damaged part of the roof and the committee decided against granting the license until Simon erects a new building.

Sam Shierat, whose yard is at the end of Reeve street, and Jacob Golper, who has a yard at the Nicholas farm on the Kimberly road, were given licenses with the stipulation that both will not store junk at their residences.

action necessary for a "coalition," he said.

Chairman Walsh (D-Mass.) announced this committee vote on Knox.

For the nomination—Walsh, Russell of Georgia, Byrd of Virginia, Gerry of Rhode Island, Andrews of Florida, Ellender of Louisiana, Luca of Illinois, Democrats; and Hale of Maine and Barbour of New Jersey, Republicans.

Against the nomination—Senators, Smith of South Carolina, Tydings of Maryland, Bone of Washington, and Holt of West Virginia, Democrats, and Johnson of California, Republican.

Walsh speaking formally as committee chairman said in a statement that Knox "possesses the driving force and general knowledge of existing conditions to contribute much to the speeding up of our naval building program."

Mrs. Helen Essary, columnist for a Washington newspaper, had been invited to testify today about an article she wrote June 22 asserting Knox had told her that he favored sending not only cash, credit and supplies but also men to fight for the allies.

She did not appear, and Chairman Walsh said he had communicated with her husband, Fred Essary, a Washington correspondent for a Baltimore newspaper.

Essary told him, Walsh said, that Mrs. Essary's recollection of her Knox interview was substantially what she had written. Walsh added that Mrs. Essary was reported to be in Rehoboth Beach, Del.

Points to Editorials

Knox, a Chicago newspaper publisher, said he had spoken to Mrs. Essary at a party in Washington on Jan. 30 but had had so many conversations then that he could not remember all of them in detail. He insisted, however, that sending men to Europe was not his position and never had been.

Knox said that in editorials for the Chicago Daily News he had advocated giving moral and economic aid to the allies but was "opposed to sending American boys to fight in Europe."

Expressing the opinion that if England is defeated, the United States would be "far more gravely menaced in the Atlantic than we have ever been before," he said:

"We may be forced to choose between the threat in the Atlantic and the threat in the Pacific and it probably would be unwise to precipitate both at the same time."

As a result, he said, he had revised his views urging a "strong policy" toward Japan.

Bucharest had a real war-time appearance last night as a partial blackout was put into effect for the first time. Only blue street lights were visible.

Reports from Oradea, in Transylvania on the Hungarian frontier, said the Rumanian army was busy with defense preparations against what officers called "habitual Hungarian night attacks."

Meanwhile Carol kept in close touch with the axis powers, which were said in diplomatic quarters to be making every effort to avert actual war in the southeast.

Carol was reported reliably to have sent a message to Premier Mussolini, the nature of which was unknown, and to have received a reply yesterday. He also received the German minister, Johann Fabricsius, in a long audience after the latter returned from a flying trip to Germany.

Worst anti-Semitic disorders last night appeared to have been in Bucharest itself, where fighting broke out among students, chiefly at Polytechnic high school. Several were injured critically here.

At Galati new disorders broke out despite vigilance of heavy military patrols on duty since riots Sunday. Near the Prut river Jewish refugee women and children were said to have been dragged from trains and beaten.

An indication that Rumania expects to get back Bessarabia and northern Bucovina some time—perhaps with German aid—was seen in an address by Foreign Minister Constantine Argetoanu in which he said these territories "are still and will remain Rumanian."

Rift Over Value of Land Halts Wolf River Reservoir

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau

Madison—Differences over land values and charges for engineering and legal services have caused a delay in the application of the Wolf River Reservoir company to the public service commission for authority to construct a dam and reservoir on the upper Wolf River in Langlade county for the benefit of lower Fox river industrial power users, it was learned here today.

Original hearing on the application of the company was held in Antigo early in June. At that time, however, disagreements over financial details resulted in a decision to postpone the hearing until August 20 at the state capital.

Paper Company Opposed

The Antigo proceedings, the public service commission record disclosed today, showed that the Fox River Paper corporation of Appleton is opposed to the stream improvement project, while it also revealed that the federal Indian service in Washington is keeping a close eye on the project, presumably for its potential effect on the interests of the residents of the Menomonee Indian reservation in Shawano county.

The Fox River Paper company representatives told Adolph Kanneberg, commission examiner, at the Antigo hearing that it is opposed "because we haven't sufficient information as yet to determine what our exact position will be."

Representatives of the water users' conference of the Fox river valley also appeared to declare that they are interested in securing a fair appraisal of the lands surrounding the reservoir site which the company will have to buy. There has been some argument that the suggested prices are too high.

It is expected that the company will require about 5,000 acres for flooding purposes. It now owns about 3,000, and expects to buy the balance needed.

It was also brought out that control of the $100,000 stock issue of the Wolf River reservoir company is vested in the firm's officers, who received it in consideration for land, labor and expenses connected with the development of the project to its present state.

Among the officers are Earl Plante of Antigo, lawyer, and Harry Brooks of Antigo, who piloted the charter bill through the 1939 legislative session.

The company was organized to build a reservoir on the upper Wolf which would store a sufficient quantity of water during the spring season to allow effective release during the dry summer months to increase the power facilities of dam sites along the lower Fox serving mills, city and private electric utilities, and other enterprises.

NEA Considers Resolutions

One Approves of Military Training in High Schools

Millwaukee—(P)—Preparedness to repulse attacks on America and democracy was advocated in a resolution considered today at the National Education Association convention.

The resolution proposed that the association "advocate such preparedness as will make the United States fully able to defend itself . . . and condemn subversive propaganda which seeks to undermine our democratic ideals."

It also would have the association "urge all teachers to redouble their efforts to develop in every youth an active, intelligent and profound loyalty to American ideals."

Another resolution, offered previously, which would call for compulsory military training in high schools and colleges was approved last night by the American Classic league, meeting in connection with the N.E.A.

The association will act on all resolutions Thursday.

Charles H. Judd of the National Youth Administration, in an address to convention delegates, declared:

"American schools, by their methods of instruction and habits of thinking which they cultivate, are so blinding the young people of this country to profitable ways of expending their energies that they seek employment in over-crowded white collar jobs and neglect opportunities that exist for the application of human intelligence and skill to the development of the material environment."

E. T. McSwain, associate professor of education at Northwestern University, cautioned mothers and teachers against being "too motherly" lest they stifle the child's developing independence."

In speaking of the latest cosmetic innovation I would like to call it the "fun make-up kit" for with its four shades of foundation cream, two of rouge, three of lipstick, four of eyeshadow and one of mascara, any girl can make herself look as she pleases — she may be the rose-bud type or a sultry South American!

With this palette of make-up colors comes an eye brow pencil, a brush with which to apply lipstick evenly, and one for mascara. Indeed one feels like an artist with the lovely array of make-up shades ready for the brushes to dip into. And the set is a big, big bargain, when you stop to count what you get for your money. You may change your type in a jiffy and that is always great fun!

If you have gone in for a red, white and blue beach outfit this season, or all white, nothing could be smarter swung over your shoulder than this useful container! After you have bronzed sufficiently, you may use the canteen for other purposes — which is always an incentive to buy!

products if your local cosmetic counter does not carry them. If you write her, enclose a self-addressed, stamped (3-cent) envelope for her reply.

ANSWERING TELEPHONE

In addition to the fact that the following question is amusingly put, my reason for printing it, is that it is one of those perennial queries which appear every so often in my mail. Today's letter tells me, "We've had an argument in our house about how our maid should answer the telephone. That is, should she say 'This is Mr. Brown's house' or 'Mrs. Brown's house'?" The maid thinks she should say 'Mrs. Brown's house' but my brother thinks this makes my father sound henpecked."

Sometime ago when another reader asked me what she should do about having her maid say "Mrs. Brown's house," since her husband objected to paying the bills and having the impression given that he was just living there. I answered that this was one of the reasons why correct social usage prefers "Hello," office answer, "B. Brown and Company." And that if one must announce the house, the proper description is "Mrs. Brown's house." But since that answer, I have thought of several good reasons why "Mrs. Brown's house" is the logical thing for the maid to say: First of all, people who call your father personally, as well as on business, call him at his office, and it may be taken for granted that calls to the house are either social messages or in some way concerned with the running of the house — in short, they are messages for your mother. The house telephone therefore, may be considered as belonging to her special department. But no matter whether your maid answers "Mr. (or Mrs.) Brown's house" (I'm glad you did not say "residence") I still think this time-saving form of speech unnecessary for a private house. Another letter has told me of her maid who saying "Hello," to some of her friends, is answered: "Hello, darling." I followed by a long, intimate account which can't always be stopped until they ran out of breath. My answer to this was

Don't Spare Expense in Developing Gifted Child

BY ANGELO PATRI

We who teach and train children and young people must get one idea quite straight before we go much farther along the road to complete education for everybody. We all believe in complete education for everybody, of course, and many schools in this country are proceeding to bestow education on the willing and the unwilling, the fit and the unfit, in the hope of realizing what is too often a mistaken idea — the same development of intellectual power for all school and college students.

We must accept the facts of nature and admit that she has ordained fundamental differences and qualities in children. To some she has given much and to some little. Our duty is to develop that Much and that Little as fully as possible, without wasting effort on trying to force the Little into competition with the Much. Gifted children need fuller, richer, more diversified courses than those of lesser qualifications.

Develop Differently

When experienced school administrators accept this fact and provide for the children accordingly, at once someone raises the cry that the public school is a democratic institution and that all children must have the same rights and privileges. They demand that all children should be given the same lessons at the same time in the same way in the hope of bringing them all to the highest standard of those especially gifted. You may as well try to rear a poplar into becoming an oak.

All children have certain qualities, certain characteristics, in common in the early years. They need about the same kind of food, shelter, clothing and care. As they develop their differences begin to show and that is the time to differentiate their training and education.

There is quality of mind in democracy because there is quality of mind in humanity. Democracy, more than any other kind of a society, needs to cherish quality of mind, needs to nurture it and develop it wherever it is found. To do so is to serve democracy well. To do less is to do it disservice.

Give Talent Right of Way

Gifted children must be satisfied for their qualities. Quickness is not enough to justify expenditure of effort and money and time upon a child. Along with intellectual power must go spiritual understanding, lest we rear a monster of efficiency to destroy himself and others. But once given a child of high quality of intellect and spirit no effort should be spared to develop him to the fullest at public expense. We need every such child. Every such youth discovered and developed to full working power is an asset beyond price. We are losing too many of them by applying what we mistakenly believe to be the democratic way in the schools.

"I believe in treating all children alike," is about one of the most costly, most devastating beliefs a parent or a teacher can hold. No two children can be treated alike and flourish equally. Each must be treated according to his needs. Don't talk about justice here. Nature is unjust as measured by human beliefs, but what can we do about it? Our duty is to help children make the best of themselves for the service of our country. We are not to let pity rob us of good sense. Give the gifted children the right of way.

Mr. Patri will give personal attention to inquiries from parents and school teachers on the care and development of children. Write him in care of this paper, enclosing a three-cent stamped, addressed envelope for reply.

Case Records of a Psychologist

By Dr. George W. Crane

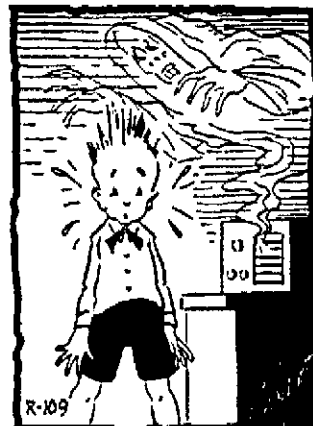

Psychologist, Northwestern University

Caffeine will stimulate your heart and nervous system, raise your blood pressure and key you up. But so will love and anger, fear and worry. Notice the effect of radio "blood and thunder" bedtime stories on Duane. His reaction is not at all abnormal. You wouldn't expect him to relax and sleep soundly if you poured several cups of black coffee down his throat at bedtime, either! Caffeine and conflict produce similar effects on youngsters.

CASE R-109: Duane L., aged 11, is an intelligent youngster. "But he has nightmares which make him scream and moan," his father explained.

"We called in our local physician, who suggested they might be a result of the radio thrillers which Duane listened to every evening. "Such horror tales with their appropriate sound effects, are enough to make even an adult's hair stand on end."

"Well, we persuaded Duane to omit the radio for a few weeks.

Sure enough, his nightmares disappeared entirely throughout this test period.

"But he felt this result might have been accidental and pleaded to listen to the radio again, so we consented.

"But his nightmares immediately returned. Even Duane was then convinced, so we have cut out the radio thrillers at our house. What do you think of me, Mr. Crane?"

DIAGNOSIS: Many readers have reported similar experience to me, and there is good reason for nightmares after the youngsters become keyed up by the "blood and thunder" stuff they often listen to.

I don't wish to damn such radio programs entirely, for youngsters enjoy that kind of plot. Good old Treasure Island, by Robert Louis Stevenson, belongs in the same class.

But there is a time and place for such nerve stimulants. Many adults who enjoy coffee at breakfast or luncheon, cannot drink it late at night without suffering insomnia.

that "All rules should be adapted to one's personal requirements." Dressing for a Wedding in the Garden

Dear Mrs. Post: What dress would you suggest for a young woman who is going as an ordinary guest to a wedding in the garden at half past six in the evening?

Answer: If you have a summer evening dress that is enough like a day dress to look well with a hat, this would be perfect; because at half past six (which in many places is half past five, sun time) it is especially early to go without a hat—especially outdoors. If you do wear a hat then you should wear gloves; otherwise they would be optional.

Mrs. Post is sorry she can no longer answer personal letters. She is glad however to have many printed slips on a variety of subjects to offer to her readers. Today's slip is "A Wedding in the Garden." Be sure to send a three-cent stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request to Mr. Post, in care of this paper, P. O. Box 150, Times Square Station, New York, N. Y.

for its stimulating effect then carries beyond their bed time.

Mental Stimulants
Parents readily perceive the folly in pouring strong coffee down the throats of their children just before bedtime, not only because the caffeine therein is a nerve stimulant, but because children also react more violently to drugs than do adults.

The nervous system can be stimulated by purely psychological methods, too, without recourse to drugs. An exciting murder mystery which keeps the youngster on the edge of his seat, chewing his finger nails or picking at his hand-nails, certainly belongs in the same category as caffeine or strychnine.

In my own case, for example, if I take strong coffee at 10 p. m. or thereabouts, I'll lie awake till the wee hours of the morning.

Likewise, if I am keyed up delivering an after dinner speech or addressing one of my evening classes from 8 till 10 p. m., I am also keyed up and sleepless.

Relax at Night
It is a familiar fact in medicine that we can accelerate the heart beat and increase the blood pressure by use of chemical substances, such as thyroid extract.

But we can also jump our blood pressure 25 to 50 points by purely psychological stimuli, such as fear, suspense, worry or anger.

If a parent can realize the unwise stimulating effect of strong coffee on a child at 7 or 8 p. m., she can therefore appreciate the similar intense stimulation of a purely psychological sort which results from hair-raising radio thrillers.

THE HOME GARDENER by EDWIN H. PERKINS

In the deep South the Japanese iris has finished their blooming while in the extreme North they may not have yet begun to flower. Wherever seen, they are admired and wanted.

Advice concerning moving other iris species does not apply in the case of the Japs; they can be successfully transplanted even when in full bloom. Consequently, gardeners are advised to select the specimens they want while in flower and carefully move them.

Rich, moist soil is their idea. They thrive in moist spots alongside a garden pond, although this excess water usually proves harmful to other garden plants. Set the crowns about as deep as they were before transplanting, allow about twelve inches between crowns and the job is done.

While division of the old clumps is the commercial method of propagating, the amateur can obtain large quantities of interesting Japanese irises by sowing an inexpensive package of seeds according to directions on the envelope, and then waiting three years for flowering age to arrive. Since the seeds have been fertilized by insects, the seedlings may prove new and worthwhile crosses but may also give you a yardful of worthless trash. It's fun, however, and worth the effort if you are of an adventurous turn of mind.

Once established in suitable environment, each division or seed-

Exit Cards As Important As Entries

BY ELY CULBERTSON

Most players past the novice stage have come to realize the enormous importance of entry cards, but it is not nearly so well known that cards of exit have an equally vital function. Today's hand illustrates the importance of getting rid of the lead.

The bidding:

North East South West
Pass Pass 4 hearts Pass

The four heart bid probably was the best at South's command. His partner had already passed, so there was small danger of missing a big-diamond slam and, even with his good honor strength, South feared an adverse spade suit.

West opened his singleton spade king; dummy's ace won, while East signaled with the seven spot. Declarer saw that it was hopeless to lead up to his club holding, since one lead from dummy would be no better than none at all. Even if the ace lay on his right, it would not go up at the first play, and he could not hope to reenter dummy for the necessary second finesse. Therefore, rather than disclose the situation, he decided that his best chance lay in help from the opponents.

As it happened, he was right. He led a heart from dummy and played the jack. West won with the ace and foolishly did just what the declarer wanted. Obviously he could not risk a diamond lead from his king and, instead of making the perfectly safe return of a trump, he led the deuce of clubs. East could have redeemed the error by failing to put up his ace, but he could hardly be blamed for not reading the situation as it actually was. His partner's lead of the deuce strongly indicated an honor in the suit, and if that were true it might be fatal to put on the jack or eight spot. Moreover, East was naturally anxious to lead a spade thru declarer in the hope that West could overruff.

But obviously, after the club ace was out of the way, declarer had to concede only the diamond, and thus made his contract. Had West exited properly in the one safe suit — trumps—declarer inevitably would have had to lose two clubs and one diamond in addition to the trump ace.

Dix Points to Advantage In Separate Vacations

BY DOROTHY DIX

A correspondent wants to know whether husbands and wives should take their vacations together or not. Inasmuch as a vacation is designed to give people rest, relaxation and change, as well as pleasure, these ends are best accomplished by each one doing what he or she wants to do instead of compromising on what the wife desires to do. Unless, of course, they are the dumb couple envisaged by the poet as two souls with but a single thought and not an original idea between them; or a couple of turtle doves who can't be happy unless they are billing and cooing, which they might as well do in one place as another; or they are starting on a long journey which would be lonesome without their true and tried companions along on whom they could blame the weather and the kind of cooking you get away from home. But, generally speaking, what's a man's meat in a vacation is a woman's poison, and vice versa. For no matter how much a husband and wife love, admire and esteem each other, they seldom have the same taste in amusement or want to enjoy themselves in the same way.

When a man, for instance, thinks of the kind of vacation he would like to take he pictures himself as getting away from the turmoil of the city and the responsibilities of domesticity and going to some wild and secluded spot in the country where he can wear his oldest clothes and not shave; or else he wants to put in his two weeks reveling in his hobby, without having his wife continually reminding him how much it costs and that she doesn't see any sense in it anyway.

A woman's ideal of a perfect vacation, on the other hand, is to go to a swanky hotel where she can spend most of her time changing her clothes and displaying her pretty frocks, and where she can have breakfast in bed and not have to eat her own cooking.

So, such being the case, why isn't it just plain, good, hard, horse sense for each to do what he or she wishes to do and leave the other free to enjoy himself or herself in his or her own way?

Why should a woman martyrize herself to go camping with her husband when it is a burden to him to drag her along, and she spends all of her time whining and complaining and spoils his fun?

And why should any woman coerce her husband into going to a summer resort that he loathes and where the end of his vacation leaves him half dead with boredom?

Old Belief of Women

Many wives cling to the foolish belief that if they let their husbands go away from them for a fortnight's fishing they will be abducted by a mermaid or something, and that if they take their eyes off him they will lose him. This is a ridiculous notion. A separate vacation is especially good for an ailing marriage but, like other strong medicine, it should be taken in broken doses—just long enough for a husband and wife to find out how they miss each other, but not so long that they discover that they can get along without each other.

Yesterday, Jan assures her brother that she doesn't think Derek is a criminal. She plans to get her salvaged man a job on Cap Tuttle's fishing barge.

Chapter Seven

Allergy To Work

Norma told herself this man was Jan's business, not hers. She heard Frank coming down the stairway with Lance and went to meet them.

Silently Jan handed the small package to Derek, noticing for the first time how he looked in the clothes she had bought. The trousers were several inches too short and the shirt was a bit tight, yet he wore them with a manner of careless indifference which made you know he was accustomed to better.

"How tall are you, anyhow?" she asked, perceiving her small straight nose was about in line with his solar plexus. "Those were the longest trousers in the salvage store."

"Six-three," he mocked, whimsically. "I'll have my tailor alter these morning trousers at once. Say, what's in this package you handed me?"

"Open it and find out, and those trousers happen to be 'all day' affairs!"

He inspected the items she'd purchased and flushed. "Why did you bother?"

"I didn't want to hear Johnny's howls when he discovered someone sharing his razor. Now, young man, take that scrubbing brush over there and get busy on these carrots!"

"I feel a spell of allergy to work coming on."

"The best cure for that is going hungry!" she snapped. "Carrots," he deplored. Nevertheless, he picked up the brush. She had to show him how to slice off the feathery green tops, scrub them, and cut them into thin slivers for cooking. While she bustled about the kitchen preparing potatoes, fish and salad, setting the big breakfast table, he kept watching her from the corner of his eyes. He finally asked, "Why don't you eat in the dining room?"

"If you want to set the table and carry the food back and forth, it's all right with me. I just have too much to do, that's all. Cooking, cleaning, marketing, caring for Lance, trying to make an artist of myself—" She halted. She hadn't meant Derek to know she painted. She had a fair intuition he knew a great deal about many things and wouldn't hesitate to be critical of her work.

"So you want to be an artist?" he asked, momentarily intrigued. "Let me see some of your work sometime, will you? Do you sketch, do crayons, or use oils?"

"All three, and water colors," she was out of the way, declarer had to concede only the diamond, and thus made his contract. Had West exited properly in the one safe suit — trumps—declarer inevitably would have had to lose two clubs and one diamond in addition to the trump ace.

Didn't Like School But Attends, Anyway

Newark, N. J. — Mrs. George Faley, 35-year-old mother of five, went back to school, she explained, because there were a lot of things about education she didn't like.

"But before I could intelligently criticize them," she said, as she received a degree from Newark Teachers College. "I thought it would be a good idea to find out what exists now in the educational field."

Now Mrs. Faley plans to work for a master's degree and a doctorate.

My Neighbor Says—

If the large stalks of delphiniums are very hollow it is well to bank them with earth so that rain will not enter them and cause them to rot. The finest heads may be allowed to go to seed, but all the side branches should be removed.

Paste a layer of blotting paper on the bottom of rough vases, they will not then scratch your furniture.

If soup gets too salty, a pinch of brown sugar added to it will take the salty taste away.

Allow the curtains to dry thoroughly before starching. They will hold the starch and keep clean longer.

Twins the Rule

Alton, Switzerland — (?) — Russell Blotz has a twin brother and their father, grandfather, great-grandfather and great-great-grandfather were twins.

Now Mrs. Russell Blotz (who was born on the same day as her husband) has given birth to twins, the sixth generation of Blotz twins.

He thought it likely Jan had painted it herself. She was, without doubt the most competent young person he'd ever known.

Voicing his admiration, he asked, "How old are you, Jan? And do you realize you're a most remarkable person? Is Jan short for Janet?"

Lance answered, "She's twenty, she's truly remarkable, and she's named after the best Norwegian cook Dad ever had on the Singapore Moon."

Sorry Knight
"I am not," she contradicted, flushing. "I'm named from the abbreviation of January because the calendar was the first thing Mother saw after I was born."

"Anyhow," Lance went on, "Mother named me after the gallant knight, Lancelot. I'm glad she doesn't know what a sorry knight I turned out."

Norma reached over and squeezed his thin, nervous hand. "You're braver than Lancelot and King Arthur put together!"

"Oh, this is a lot of rubbish!" he said in irritation. "I wish Frank would come and take me upstairs. I don't like it down here, it depresses me."

"I'll take you upstairs," Derek offered.

Lance seemed to shrink in upon himself, hating Jan knew, this kindly meant offer which only drove home his helplessness. A proud man, continually erecting defenses against pity from others, he would suffer no one to touch him but Frank and Jan. By determined practice he now could manage most everything for himself; bathing, dressing, shaving, moving from the bed to the chair, dragging his helpless limbs like so much dead weight.

"I should have warned Der Jan thought, 'I can't tell him I'm in front of Lance.'"

The pause grew increasingly awkward as Derek looked around the table at perturbed faces. Lance finally said, "Thanks, but I guess it was just a mood. I'd really like to stay down a while longer. Will you play some Chopin for me, Jan?"

Her eyes turned involuntarily to Derek who rose from the table. "You'll lend me a sweater, I'll walk," he declared, adding under his breath, "Chopin I can't bear him."

Jan, hearing him, becoming annoyed and curious, said: "I don't have to play Chopin. Whom do you prefer?"

His undisciplined, far too sensitive mouth set into a harsh line. "I prefer not hearing anything, so I'll walk."

When the door closed after him Lance frowned. "He needn't have been rude about it. Why do you want to keep him here, Jan? We don't know anything about him. If he's honest and has nothing shameful to hide, why doesn't he speak up and tell who he is? I don't like it. There's something queer about him."

"I like mysteries!" Jan countered lightly. And now that one has landed on my doorstep, so to speak, I'm going to hang on to it until I solve it."

"I hope the mystery won't turn out to be a Pandora's Box or a Bluebeard's Closet," Norma murmured, really concerned, for she realized Lance, with the best of intentions, had successfully put Jan on the defensive, and a woman on the defensive is not apt to be very rational.

To make matters even worse, Lance now grumbled, "I think it's his damned good looks that appeal to her. He's a remarkably handsome chap, too handsome."

"I'll wager women have thrown themselves at him more than once. Jan, I wish you'd tell him to clear out. I'm afraid."

"That I'll fall in love with him?" she teased. "No danger, my two solicitous darlings."

III--JAWS AROUND THE CZECHS

There is no proof that Austria wanted to join Hitler's Germany. It is quite likely that a free vote of the people would have shown them against going with the Nazis.

The Austrians spoke German, to be sure, but they never had been under the rule of Berlin. Most Austrians were of the Catholic faith, and it was known that Hitler had struck blows against Catholics in Germany.

At first secretly, then openly, Hitler had built up a strong army and a big air fleet. He planned to use these in adding to German power.

Suddenly he started a drive to take over Austria. He wanted to do so peacefully, if possible, but said he would go to war if need be.

An election was ordered in Austria, so the people could vote on whether they wanted to join Germany. Before the vote could be taken, Hitler ordered his army into Austria.

Little Austria could not stand alone against Germany. Her former "friend," Mussolini, deserted her in the hour of her need. No other power was ready to hold Hitler back.

So Hitler won Austria without a battle. His native land was made the first new chunk in his empire.

There was a reason why Hitler wanted to take over Austria before he took Czechoslovakia. He had the idea of building "jaws" around the countries he planned to swallow. A part of Germany made a northern jaw around the Czechs. When Austria was taken, it made a southern jaw.

That point is important. In later conquests, we find Hitler throwing out "jaws" time and again, then crushing his victims. It is the so-called "pincer" or "nutcracker" plan.

At the time Hitler started to work on Czechoslovakia, Poland was bound to Germany by a treaty of friendship. That treaty was to be broken.

Manager Eddie Dancsak and the Appleton Papermakers will return home tomorrow afternoon after a week touring the state and will do battle with the Green Bay Bluejays at 3 o'clock at Spencer street field. Immediately after the game the teams will go to Green Bay for a night exhibition starting at 8:15. Friday night the two teams will show here with Al Schacht, the baseball comedian, as an added attraction.

Saturday night Fond du Lac will be the opponent and Sunday afternoon Appleton will have its first home doubleheader. The Fond du Lac Panthers will furnish the opposition and the games will start at 1:30 and 3:30.

There'll be two or three new faces on the Appleton club as it returns. George Christakis, who worked out early in the season but was injured and sent home, will be showing at second base. Les Hoffken, whom he supplanted, has been in the outfield.

Another new face will be that of John Crvarich, an outfielder who comes out of the Texas league. There also are reports that a pitcher will join the club.

Still another innovation at games starting tomorrow will be "war tax." The price of admission on all tickets will be increased with the grandstand tickets selling for 44 cents and the bleacher tickets for 30 cents.

Wisconsin Rapids—A salvo of 16 blows exploded over the heads of the Appleton Papermakers here Tuesday night as the Wisconsin Rapids White Sox trampled Eddie Dancsak's proteges, 12 to 3, in an arc lighted Wisconsin State league contest. The slugging Sox scored in every inning but the sixth, third baseman Bill Scheske directing the barrage with four hits, climaxed by a circuit clout over the left field fence in the seventh with two aboard. Bernard Blumenthal, in his third start of the season for the Papermakers, was touched from the start. Scheske and Warren Lorenz connecting on the first two balls he pitched.

The second inning brought his downfall as Sparr doubled with the bases loaded. Johnny Van Cuyk handled the relief assignment with mediocrity.

The visitors pounded out eight safe blows, including a pair of doubles by Tommy Hawk. In the eighth, it appeared as if Appleton was coming up with a mighty spurge as the bags were filled with none retired. Dancsak popped to Scheske, Malawig scored on Chell's forceout at second and the threat was halted when Hoffken fanned. Appleton broke into the scoring column in the sixth as Malattia opened with a single to right, Malawig walked, and both scored on Hawk's second double to right.

Blues Wallop Brewers, 20-8

Gullic Is Shining Light As He Hits Home Run, Pitches

Milwaukee —(P)—If the Milwaukee Brewers had more ball players like Ted Gullic they might be leading the American association race, rather than fighting to stay in the first division.

The veteran Gullic, who has roamed the center field pasture for Milwaukee for more years than he cares to remember, poled out a homer, double and a single and pitched four innings last night.

His efforts were wasted, however, as the Brewers took a 20 to 8 beating from the Kansas City Blues.

Before Gullic took over in the sixth the Blues had a 16 to 2 advantage. They got to him for four more runs on five hits.

Score by innings:
Kansas City 440 307 002—20 19 3
Milwaukee 010 103 030—8 11 5

Lindell and Riddle: De Shong, Kline (3), Marrow (6), Gullic (6) and Hankins and Garbark.

Minneapolis and Kansas City, the two leaders both won again last night. Minneapolis outlasted St. Paul, 9 to 8, despite the Saints' 14th hit attack, while the Blues hopped on Milwaukee.

Indianapolis, bouncing back after a sad June streak, notched its sixth straight victory, 3 to 2, over Toledo, on Bob Logan's six-hit pitching in 10 innings.

Columbus defeated Louisville on Murray Dickson's six-hitter, 5 to 3.

Auto Racers in Stiff Contest in Colorado

Grand Junction, Colo. —(P)—Over a course that has more curves than a bathing beauty contest a dozen or more gasoline jockeys will battle tomorrow in western Colorado's first annual land's end road automobile race.

Between start and finish of the 14.5-mile stretch over the gravel highway east of here there are 218 curves and switchbacks, some so sharp they might have been staked out by a mountain prospector on a vacillating burro.

The racers, driving singly against time, will get away from a point 4,600 feet above sea level and climb along the edge of land's end forest to the top of the grand mesa, 10,000 feet high.

Trucks Primed For New London Thursday Night

Clintonville Expects To Avenger Earlier Losses to Invaders

Clintonville — The Clintonville Truckers are planning on shooting the works Thursday night when they entertain the revamped New London nine. So far this season the Londoners have hung up two wins over the Truckers and Manager Sid Felts' boys are out for revenge. New London is under new management since the resignation of Mac Donner and may bob up with several new faces.

Clintonville split in its games Sunday losing to Manitowoc in the morning, 6 to 5, and defeating Two Rivers in the afternoon, 6 to 1. At the present time the Truckers are tied with Two Rivers for third place in the Northern State league standings each with four wins and six losses. The invading New London team is resting in the cellar with only three wins and five defeats. Manitowoc is on top of the heap with seven wins and one loss to practically cinch the first round title. Seymour and Two Rivers are the only two teams which have a mathematical chance to tie for the bunting. The Seymours are in second place with an even .500 rating winning three and losing three.

The Truckers have been known as hitters in Northern State league circles the last two years but this season rank second to Manitowoc. Joe Pelcka, veteran Truckers pitcher and outfielder, is leading the league with a .533 batting average. Manager Felts is second with a .400 average followed by Jim Huffman with .375 and Rollie Kersten with .371.

Carl Lehman will start against the Londoners with Gene Volkman on the receiving end. Lehman lost a tough game to Manitowoc Sunday and he also has a score to settle with New London. On first base will be Milt Long, who has been playing good ball. Frosty Ferzacca will be on second. Clancy Holm at short, and Rollie Kersten on the red light station. In the outfield, Jim Huffman will cavort in left, Al Ankerson in center and Woody Felts or Joe Pelcka in right.

Forster Tavern in Win at Manitowoc

With Bobbie Diener allowing but three hits and smacking two home runs, Forster Taverns edged out White House Mills, 6 to 5, at Manitowoc last night. Both teams scored one run in the first inning and two in the second. The Appleton team gained a 4 to 3 lead with a marker in the third and increased it to 5-3 in the fifth frame. Manitowoc added its final marker in the sixth stanza.

Contributing to the Forster attack a double and a single by E. Davidson in three trips to the plate and doubles by O. Kirk and Werner. But for the stellar fielding of Engelbrecht, the Forster team would have had more hits and runs. Vetter stood for the losers.

Oshkosh Will Meet Kimberly

Exhibition Game to Have Central Wis. Team at Village

Kimberly—Kimberly Papermakers have a game scheduled for Friday night under the lights with Oshkosh of the Central State league. The game is an exhibition and should show the relative strength of the two leagues. Oshkosh has won six of seven games and is in second place in league standings.

Porky Penzstadler will be on the visitors' pitching staff. Porky was the mainstay of Green Bay and Seymour in the Northern state league.

Last Sunday Oshkosh defeated Markesan, 5 to 3. The manager has sent notice that he has several youngsters who are slated for Class D ball next spring besides other players who at one time played in the Fox Valley league.

Kimberly will put up its best talent. Wildenberg is not certain if his choice on the mound but undoubtedly will start Lefty Vander Zanden or Boucher. Both moundsmen are in perfect trim and are ready to show their stuff.

Oshkosh has Zimmerman holding down first with Haidlinger at the keystone station. Schumacher will play short with Jovaag doing a great job at the hot corner. Sonnenleitner will be catching the slants of Penzstadler. The outer gardens will show Bixby at left, Spanbauer in center and Boeder in right. The game will start at 8:15.

Chicago—Jimmie Dykes, long famous as baseball's champion "bench jockey," found an ideal target in the Cleveland Indians during the latter's visit to Comiskey Park recently.

It was the Cleveland team's recent protest against their manager, Oscar Vitt, their complaints to President Bradley, then their subsequent withdrawal of the charges that offered Dykes an idea target. As the first Cleveland batter came up in the first game Dykes' voice rose from the Sox bench.

"Look at Vitt, cry babies, look at Vitt!" Then hold a meeting, and write Bradley a letter."

That started it, with Dykes as conductor of the caustic chorus of insults, the symphony gained volume when the fighting members of the Sox wolf pack took up their leader's cry.

"Yaahh, cry babies, he's driving us cry babies nuts."

All of this referred, of course, to the fact that several Tribe players had gone to President Bradley and charged they couldn't play winning ball for Vitt because, among other reasons, he got too nervous during games, because he "drove them nuts" and because "he made them

In another first round match yesterday, Charles Miller, Appleton, defeated Bud Banta, Menasha, 6-0, 6-2, and Miller will face Billy Talbot, Cincinnati, today.

You get a wonderful view of the ball game from my position—and you need it. It's your job to analyze every playing situation and to meet every emergency in a flash.

That's one of your most important jobs but of course there are others. First, though, let's check up on your qualifications for the job. You should be tall—height helps in grabbing wild pitches and throws from the outfield—but there have been good catchers of every size and shape.

If you're a worrier you'll have a tough time. I find the position requires a calm, objective view of the field at all times. But you must be on your toes.

If you're still interested in the job, put on a mask and come behind the plate with me. We'll take up some fundamentals.

The Proper Crouch
Now, get into the crouch with your legs comfortably spread, trunk and knees slightly bent, weight on the balls of the feet. I find it's a good idea to keep the left foot advanced an inch or two to speed up the rise to throwing position.

The best throw is a snap, forearm power shot, sent
